VELASQUEZ'S PORTRAIT

The Finest Collection Ever Seen in America.

BOSTON, Sept. 21, 1874.

There was yesterday a private view of the collection of paintings loaned by the Duc de Montpensier to the Art Committee of the Boston Museum. It will be remembered that these paintings were removed from the palace of St. Telmo, at Seville, to Gibraltar, as a precautionary measure, in consequence of the continued troubles in Spain. It was at first intended that they should find a temporary resting place in London; but, owing to the death of Sir Edwin Landseer, the Royal Academy withdrew the offer of space that had been made to the Duke. Owing to the prompt action of Mr. Codman, of Boston, and the kind offices of Mr. Auguste Laugel, long private secretary to the Duc d'Aumale, the paintings were secured to the public of Boston for at least one year, on the sole condition that the pictures should be insured to their estimated value against marine and fire risks.

The number of works contained in the collection does not exceed thirty, but their value more than compensates for their fewness. Several paintings of importance have been loaned by private parties, in order to increase the interest of the exhibition. Some twenty-one of the works belong to beginning with Luis de Morales, surnamed the Divine, who was born in 1509, and, passing through the brilliant progression of artists until it reaches the great master, Bartholomeo Estaban de Murillo, in whom the wonderful succession of Spanish masters culminated. The period covers only some seventy years, and yet it includes the great constellation of artists that raised the Spanish school to a place only second in the heaven of art.

"THE VIRGIN OF SORROWS."

First in point of chronological order stands Luis de Morales, born in 1509, whose genius did not save him from the frowns of fortune. He studied at Valladolid and Toledo and early acquired great reputation, so much so that he was summoned to the Court; but some ill-disposed persons having prejudiced the King against him on his arrival he was given the expenses of his journey and sent back in disgrace. Fortune then abandoned him and he fell into great poverty. Philip I., passing through Badajoz in 1581, seeing the poor artist, said to him, to which he promptly replied, "and poor, Sire." The King was touched and conferred on the old man a pension of 300 ducats, which he enjoyed till his death, five years later. In his drawing this artist was severely correct. His anatomy was exceedingly learned, while his finish was most elaborate. All these qualities are present in the work which represents him in this collection. In the catalogue it is called "The Madonna with the Dead Christ in Her Arms" (18). We are inclined to the opinion that it is the work known in Spain as "The Virgin of Sorrows," which is looked upon as the masterpiece of the artist. The hands and head especially are painted with a perfection of minutiæ and a finish

"YOU ARE OLD MORALES,"

WORTHY OF HOLBEIN.

The modelling of the forms, too, is exquisitely delicate, displaying profound acquaintance with anatomy. The story of the Virgin's sorrow is told with energy. The livid body of Christ rests in her arms with absolute impassiveness; but, though the body in its posture reveals that Death has accomplished his work, the artist has deprived it of the repulsiveness that would attach to a merely literal study of a corpse. Although the dead body occupies the foreground, attention is skilfully directed to the sorrowing mother, whose grief is depicted with a power of emotional expression truly marvellous. This work at one time formed part of the Spanish Gallery at the Louvre. It is the only canvas of "the divine Morales" in the collection.

THE HISTORY OF JACOB.

Next in order of time comes Pedro Orrente, born in 1560, at Monte Alegre, in the Province of Murcia. It is thought that he was a pupil of Bassano, of Valencia, but others hold he only imitated this master, and that he received lessons from Greco at Toledo. Some of his most remarkable works were executed at Murcia, Valencia and finally at Madrid. Like Morales he belonged to a period when predominated in art. His brush was energetic, facile and correct, but his invention was capricious. His manner was very original, and as he was a master in the treatment of light and shade he specially sought to produce striking effects. He is represented in the collection by three pictures which deal with the history of Jacob. They are principally remarkable for the boldness of and the truthful manner in which the flocks of sheep have been painted. In this branch of art he leaves the best of the modern artists far behind. Beside the flocks of sheep that accompany Jacob the best studies of Verboeckhoven become weak. The form and woolly texture of the sheep are reproduced with marvellous truth to nature and without any appearance of effort. The facility of this master's execution is proved by the number of sheep introduced and which are all painted with the same perfection and masterly boldness.

THE RELIGIOUS ELEMENT

JUAN DE RIBALTA.

It is said that love first drew Ribalta's attention to art. In order that he might obtain the hand of an artist's daughter in marriage he repaired to Italy and there worked with success for many years. He settled at Valencia. He is represented in the present collection by which displays his characteristic severity of design and great anatomical knowlege. His color is strong and free from mannerism.

"THE ECSTASY OF ST. FRANCIS OF ASSISSI,"

HIS PUPIL.

José de Ribera, who deserves to rank with Michael Angelo for boldness of conception and vigor of execution, is represented by only one canvas, which, though it bears evidence to the masterly vigor of his execution, conveys an unfaithful idea of the artist's works. Ribera delighted in painting and passions. He was essentially a male artist, and his crucifixions and executions exhibit something of delight in the contemplation of human agony. The nature of his art was no doubt influenced by his associations, and, as his life was a very eventful one, we have reason to believe that he was more conversant with scenes of suffering and violence than with life in its pleasanter phases. Having studied some time under Ribalta he went to Italy. Here, for some reason, he abandoned art and adopted the profession of arms. In this he was unlucky, for, being captured by the Moors, he was held as a prisoner for five years. Returning to Italy, he studied under Caravaggio. Having visited Parma, to see Correggio, he was delighted by that artist's work. He made an effort to acquire his style, but found it unsuitable to his genius. He sought striking effects, but too often selected his subjects merely to show

THE STRONGER EMOTIONS

HIS ANATOMICAL KNOWLEDGE

or to strike the beholder with horror or affright. The example in the collection, "Cato, of Utica, Tearing out his Entrails," belongs to the latter class, and not even the admirable manner of its execution can prevent a feeling of disg[illegible] engendered by the subject. So far as t[illegible] technique merely is concerned it exhibits the and miraculous energy and audac[illegible] which distinguish this master's works. It [illegible] feature of Ribera's paintings [illegible] is a remarkable [illegible] amined closely or at a dista[illegible] that, whether examined same effect. Both pictures are evidently by [illegible] squez, and the freedom with which they are [illegible] nted is against the idea that they are copies. The likenesses, though good and drawn by a familiar hand, have not the exact similarity of expression with the larger portraits that we would naturally look for in a copy. They seem rather the work of a man knowing well his models, who drew freely the design for a larger work. They are valuable as showing that even in comparatively small canvases Velasquez never lost the decision or breadth of treatment, which characterizes his larger canvases. This artist's works are particularly worthy of note, because he was the first of the great masters who turned to humanity for inspiration, and showed the power of art to raise up and give importance to objects in themselves mean and despicable. He made man his special study, seeking to present him as he was, without any attempt to idealize him. He

ABANDONED THE ANGELS

to descend to the level of kings, courtiers, soldiers and beggars, and has left us pictures of the men of his time which are simply invaluable. Of an observing and mathematical mind, his genius was ill suited to those great conceptions which demand warmth of soul and exaltation of feeling; but as a painter he was unrivalled in the truthfulness and naturalness of his productions. Master of the whole gamut of art, his drawing is remarkable for freedom and power, as well as irreproachable in its purity. On his canvases he seems absolutely to play with

DIFFICULTIES OF FORM AND LIGHT.

His color is firm, sure and natural. In his works we find a thorough understanding of the difficulties of elevation and distribution of light, while his treatment of linear and aerial perspective approached well nigh to perfection. As a portrait painter he excelled all Spanish artists, and took rank with the greatest men of other nations in this department. The present collection is fortunate in the posession of an admirable specimen of his power in this direction. It is a portrait supposed to be of himself, and displays all the qualities of perfect modelling,

RICHNESS OF COLOR,

harmony of tone and learned distribution of light that we find in the best works of Titian. In all the powers that could be acquired by deep and unceasing study Velasquez stood pre-eminent. What he wanted to render him the greatest of artists was imagination, force of conception and profundity of thought; and these no industry could give him. His works seldom come into the market. In the Warwick sale, in 1859, an equestrian portrait of Don Luis de Haro was purchased for 32,920 francs, and at the sale of Guillaume II. (1850) the portraits of Philip IV. and the Duc d'Olivares were sold for 38,850 florins.

BOCANEGRA.

This artist was born in Grenada, but the date of his birth is not positively known. He died in 1688. He was exceedingly vain, and his indiscretions finally caused his death. He was a learned colorist, and imitated Van Dyck, but exaggerated on his style. He is represented by a work of no great merit, entitled

"THE REPENTANT MAGDALEN."

A richly dressed lady is putting off her diamonds, and, we suppose, preparing to withdraw from a sinful world, which she has suddenly found to be not as pleasant a place as she once thought it. The moral lesson conveyed is a good one, though a little old, and will serve even for the present day, though, probably, had the lady lived in our time she would have been satisfied with making a statement. The action is theatrical, but the color is rich.

Four very important works, by Zurbaran, occupy one side of the room where the purely Spanish works are assembled. They are, "The Annunciation," "The Adoration of the Shepherds," "The Adoration of the Magi" and "The Circumcision," which formed originally the great altar piece of the Carthusian Convent at Cadiz. "The Adoration of the Magi" is painted in the artist's best style, and is full of grandeur, and solid studies. It is unquestionably the best work in the collection, in the grandeur and nobleness of its composition, boldness of drawing and richness of color. In these qualities it is perhaps unsurpassed by any work by the same artist, who has the advantage over his rivals of appearing at his best, while they are represented by some of their less happy efforts. In this picture the Virgin is represented as an humble maiden, holding on her knee the Infant. Behind her chair stands St. Joseph, who is presented as an unmistakable Iberian. The chief figures are the old Magus, who kneels kissing the Infant's hand, and a splendid looking Spanish cavalier, who occupies the centre of the group, the third Magus being represented by a negro. The painting has all of the Spanish school, relieved by a Caravaggiolike treatment of light and shade. An immense mass of light has been thrown on the figures in the foreground, which have been finished with the greatest care, and the result is a truly marvellous effect. The dignity of the composition has been well mantained in all the figures, and nothing that could take away from the impressiveness of the scene has been introduced. In his other canvas, "The Adoration of the Shepherds," painted, as a Latin inscription informs us, for King Philip, the forms of common life are introduced in the realistic manner. In this picture the Infant is exposed on a couch and the Virgin is in the act of removing the white covering cloth. Some shepherds are kneeling in adoration on the right and some children on the left. Behind, angels are seen singing, one accompanying on the guitar. In the clouds a choir of cherubims intone a song of joy, and an angel clad in scarlet, who is playing on a huge harp, seems to be chef d'orchestre. In the background peasants are seen hastening to pay homage. The composition is very spirited and full of devotional feeling, though some of the assistants do not seem very much impressed; but in point of color it falls far below "The Adoration of the Magi." It possesses, however, more of the distinctive characteristics of Spanish art. The assistants are all Spanish peasants, exceedingly naturalistic, and are and vigor. "The Circumcision" is admirably painted, with great breadth of treatment. This admirable group of paintings is completed by "The Annunciation." Though full of sweetness and religious feeling it is not equal in execution to its companions. "A Monk Praying" furnishes an example of this artist's skill in portraits and is painted with vigor and decision. The painter of these works, Francisco Zurbaran, was born in humble life at Fuente de Cantos in Estremadura, in the year 1598. He was first employed as a laborer, but his taste for painting procured for him patrons who enabled him to proceed to Madrid, where he entered the studio of Roelas. During his life he acquired great fame and popularity. He died in 1662.

BRILLIANT EFFECTS

THE DISTINCTIVE SOMBRENESS

In the centre of a large field of brown cloth is hung

THE SOLITARY EXAMPLE OF MURILLO

which the collection boasts. It is evidently regarded by the Committee of Arrangements as the gem of the collection, for a place of honor has been created for it. Placed on the wall to the right of the entrance it occupies a very large space; not that it is a large canvas, but it has been set in a field of brown cloth so as to bring out its qualities in the most striking manner. From this isolation and the arrangement of the light it enjoys special advantages over the other works, for whatever could be done to bring out its beauties has been done by the committee. And it must be admitted by even the least enthusiastic admirer of Murillo that the picture deserves all the care and attention that has been lavished on it. All the sweetness of expression, grace of line, warmth of color and harmony of tone that we are accustomed to look for in the happiest effort of this master may be found in this work. It is painted in his

GOLDEN STYLE,

and though it may not claim to be one of his best efforts, it exhibits the best qualities of his art. Murillo's "Holy Family" is wanting in the ecstatic religious feeling of the older artists. It is simple, sweet and poetic, but does not breathe the devotional feeling and profound belief that distinguished the earlier Christian art. The Virgin, child and attendant angels playing on fiddle and guitar are idealized certainly, and imbued with exquisite delicacy and tenderness, but still human. There is little trace here of the enthusiasm of his highest religious ideal, which found expression in the marvellous "Immaculate Conception," on which he seems to have concentrated all that was most poetic and enthusiastic in his nature. The lines of composition in this "Holy Family" are subtle and graceful to a remarkable degree, and, combined with details of unrivalled harmony, form a most perfect ensemble. The estimation in which the works of this great artist are held may be judged from the fact that fifteen pictures stolen by Soult, and which were sold with his collection in 1852, brought 1,163,245 francs; the "Immaculate Conception" alone, which was purchased for the Gallery of the Louvre, being sold for 615,000 francs.

PURELY HUMAN;

Francisco Herrera, known as El Viejo, to distinguish him from his son, has been much less fortunate than his countryman, Murillo, in the treatment he has received at the hands of the committee. His two splendid groups of mitred heads, representing have been hung well nigh up to the heaven to which they belong. It is to be regretted that this should have occurred, as the two groups in question are canvases of unusual merit, the painting of these heads with mitres that look like tongues of flame offering almost insurmountable difficulties to artistic treatment. Not alone has this difficulty been overcome with great skill, but the composition has been rendered very striking and suggestive by the manner in which they are combined. In the painting of the heads great vigor is displayed and the treatment recalls vividly the qualities of Tintoretto.

Two of the most interesting works in the collection are placed immediately underneath. They are landscapes by Herrera, the younger, and exhibit remarkable qualities in which recalls the best efforts of Turner. There is here all the luminous rendering of light which we find in the great English painter, without his exaggerations. And it would be interesting to know whether Turner ever studied the works of this Spaniard, whose work combines the qualities that we admire in Claude and Turner, and is suggestive of both. Nothing could be more delightfully refreshing than the cool silvery grays of the sky, which seem absolutely to vibrate in the far distance. And yet there is nothing in these pictures to attract the popular eye. But the art connoisseur will examine them with unalloyed pleasure. We recommend the picture to the attention of our own landscape artists. They will find in them subject for study and imitation. We should be curious to see some trace the influence of Herrera in forming Turner's manner, if such influence really existed.

With these landscapes we pass from the Spanish school of art to the few examples of the Italian masters which reinforce the collection. It may be well to state here that the real interest of the collection depends as much on the fact that the works composing it illustrate the whole period of grand Spanish art as on the unusual merit of some of the examples. For this reason we have reviewed the works in their chronological order, pointing out the merits and defects of the various artists. The few examples of Italian art in the collection do not furnish any motive for the adoption of the same orderly method and we prefer to take up

THE WORKS OF SALVATOR ROSA

as exhibiting something of the sombreness and severity of Spanish art. Indeed, Salvator Rosa and Caravaggio seem to be the connecting link between the art of the two peoples. Two landscapes by the former artist hung with the Spanish pictures arrest attention by the bold and original style of their treatment. The scenes are wild, almost savage, and traced with a free and strangely vigorous hand. In one of them some horsemen are riding at full speed down a savage glen. The group is a mere accessory, but the figures are painted in with wonderful spirit and sense of motion. They are well conceived and of the gloomy wildness of the vale. The color is severe and not over agreeable, but it is well in harmony with the scene, which is intended to be grand and savage, not pleasant. The gloom of Salvator Rosa's genius was, no doubt, deepened by the circumstances of his early life. Born in poverty, about 1615, he would probably have perished unknown had he not been discovered by Lefranc. During his life he won recognition, but made hosts of enemies by his indulgence in bitter sarcasm at the expense of his contemporaries. He died in 1673. An important group by Sebastian del Piombo, which has suffered from the influence of time, gives a glimpse at the style of work done by the man whom Michael Angelo set up as

HEIGHTEN THE EFFECT

RAPHAEL'S RIVAL.

A woman is about to cover a sleeping child with a gauze veil, and the way in which the texture of the veil has been rendered is truly marvellous. It seems to float and feel the influence of the atmosphere. The painting of the figures is solid and bold and lifelike, and the color fresh and vigorous. The drawing is not quite so satisfactory. "The Procession of the Sacred Ceborium," by Vander Meulen, does not deserve special note. It is a pretentious canvas of not much value.

A HOLY FAMILY,

by Cima, a pupil of John Bellini, loaned from a private gallery, is an interesting addition to the collection. In it we find the reposeful, religious sentiment which distinguished the early

IDEAL CHRISTIAN ART.

The technique, too, displays admirable skill, joined to graceful composition.

In order to make a better show some works of questionable merit have been hung in the second room devoted to the exhibition of the collection. This, we think, was an error, as they decidedly lessen both the interest and charm of the really good works. The museum of antiquities will, however, prove a valuable addition. Notwithstanding some inevitable defects of arrangement due to the shortness of the time at the disposal of the committee the Montpensier collection cannot fail to make a deep impression on the American public. It affords an opportunity never before enjoyed of forming a fair idea of the Spanish school of painting. Many of the works display the best qualities of the artist from whose easel they come, and all are fairly representative. Boston has reason to feel grateful to the energy of those citizens whose promptitude secured for their city the enjoyment which every true lover of art must feel in contemplating these magnificent works of art. We hope that when the bustle of the first few days has passed Messrs. Perkins, Brimmer and the energetic members of the Art Committee who assist in their labors will see the way to redistribute some of the pictures, and deal out to all the great dead the justice they have done to Murillo. It only requires courage to face the appearance of a sparsely decorated wall, but the heightening of the interest in the paintings that must inevitably result will more than compensate for the want of numerical strength in the collection.

TO EUROPE FOR FIFTEEN DOLLARS.

The Cunard Line Commence Their Opposition Fight with the National Line—Steerage Fares Tumbled Down from Twenty-seven and Twenty-five Dollars to Fifteen!

As predicted in Sunday's HERALD, the agents of the North Atlantic Steamship Conference failed to agree at their meeting yesterday. The result will be that passengers can now return to Great Britain for $15, instead of $27 and $25. The fight in the Conference is between the National and Cunard lines, the former having commenced to run opposition to the Cunarders to Boston, and claiming the right on account of being a younger line to charge considerably less steerage rate than the Cunarders. The question of freight to Boston has also entered into the discussion. A few minutes after the Conference at No. 29 Broadway was over, the first blow was struck and the Cunarders commenced the fight by selling $15 tickets. Their example was speedily followed by the State line of Scotch steamers, who sell tickets at $12 net, allowing $3 commission to agents. The other lines asked all kinds of prices, $20 being accepted in more than one case. The general remark made by the representatives of the lines belonging to the Conference was that it was very hard on them to have to suffer by the quarrelling of the Cunarders and National line on account of the Boston trade. During the recent competition of the steamship lines from May till September upward of 50,000 emigrants have left these shores at rates varying from $12 to $15, the former being the rates at which tickets are sold to agents. During the recent high rates the American company's European steamers have been reaping a rich harvest, as that line has steadily refused to enter the Conference and has been carrying passengers at $17 to Liverpool. Mr. Francklyn, the agent of the Cunard steamers, who was absent at the last meeting, was present yesterday. A last attempt at a reconciliation is to be made to-day, but as war has been declared and a formal disruption of the Conference has taken place by the sale of $15 tickets, no solution can, it is thought, be possibly arrived at. The companies in Liverpool have been selling £3 tickets for New York, say $15, for many days past. As matters now stand the fight between the National and Cunard lines promises to be a long and bitter one.

A NUISANCE ARRESTED.

The Danger of Trifling with Ladies who Advertise in the Herald.

Carlo Bondeiro Panciatichi, of No. 105 Fourth avenue, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Captain Irving and Detective Leahy and locked up at the Central Office. He is charged with writing obscene, insinuating and insulting letters to ladies who had advertised in the HERALD and other journals. Signor Panciatichi's method was to select some announcement from the columns of the HERALD through which a lady was seeking employment, and under pretence of having something to offer in the way of occupation, adroitly convey an indecent proposition. In one case the Italian ruffian had the temerity to send his picture, and that caused his fall. The portrait was sent to Captain Irving, with instructions for the arrest of the original, and it followed almost at once. Captain Irving handed the picture to Detective Leahy and desired him to hold himself in readiness. A letter, purporting to be sent by a lady, was despatched to the Italian. The note requested an appointment, and Panciatichi promptly went to the point indicated, expecting to find a victim to his evil acts awaiting him; but he found instead Detective Leahy, who at once secured the scoundrel. Upon being conveyed to the Central Office the prisoner was searched and on him were discovered a large number of letters ready for the post. They were nearly all alike, written in bad English and containing the most insulting propositions to the ladies to whom they were addressed. In each case the advertisement answered was cut out and pinned to the top of the note, so that no mistake could occur. The fellow's folly and meaning were so thinly disguised that his prompt and condign punishment is certain. He will be arraigned at the Tombs Police Court this morning.

DEATH OF AN ARCTIC EXPLORER.

Mr. Henry W. Dodge, an Arctic explorer of considerable reputation, dropped dead about five o'clock on Sunday afternoon in a Fulton street, Brooklyn, dining saloon. The deceased, who was forty-six years of age, was a navigator by profession and a man of high literary attainments. He accompanied Captain Hall as third officer, was an executive officer in Dr. Hayes' expedition to the Arctic regions, and was also one of the "ice pilots" on the Juniata. He wrote a number of valuable works, and recently aided in compiling several works on Arctic explorations. The deceased resided at No. 194 Sands street. Of late he had several apoplectic fits, and it was in one of these he expired. Coroner Jones will hold an inquest over the body to-day.

FLEETWOOD PARK.

TWO FINE TROTTING CONTESTS

Gloster the Winner of the $10,000 Race and George B. Daniels of the $1,000 Purse.

SIX THOUSAND SPECTATORS.

There was an immense gathering at Fleetwood Park yesterday afternoon to witness the trotting announced to take place, the number being variously estimated from six to seven thousand. The grand stand was filled, the banks above the homestretch were thronged, the field was full of vehicles of all kinds, and the club house balconies were crowded. On the upper balcony several ladies and gentlemen who accompanied the Irish riflemen to this city were seated, looking on apparently well satisfied with the trotting which came off during the afternoon.

Two contests were on the programme, the first being a purse of $10,000, divided into four parts, the winning horse to receive $4,000, the second $3,000, the third $1,800 and the fourth $1,200; the distance two-mile heats, three in five, in harness. There were four entries for this event, comprising Mr. Alden Goldsmith's brown gelding Gloster, W. Lovell's bay mare American Girl, A. T. Merrill's black gelding Camors, and William Humphrey's chestnut gelding Judge Fullerton. Before the start American Girl and Judge Fullerton sold for about equal amounts in a majority of the pools, but after the first heat Gloster was the favorite, and he continued to be the favorite at long odds to the end. He won the race apparently very easily, although American Girl scored the second heat; Gloster, however, was not allowed to try for that heat. He had no trouble in winning the others.

The second trot was between horses that had never beaten 2:31, for a purse of $1,000; $550 to the first, $300 to the second and $150 to the third horse; mile heats, best three in five, in harness. For this there were eight entries and five starters. These were James McKee's sorrel gelding George B. Daniels, John Chambers' bay mare Molsey, Dan Mace's gray mare Heatherbloom, H. Peterson's gray mare Cora F. and H. Casey's brown stallion William Turnbull. The two last named were distanced the first heat. George B. Daniels was the favorite throughout the race. He won the race, scoring the first, third and fourth heats.

The track was in very fair condition considering the amount of rain that has fallen during the past week, and the time made by Gloster is simply wonderful.

The following are the details of the trotting as it came off:—

The First Trot.

THE BETTING BEFORE THE START.

American Girl	$175	180	200	130
Gloster	155	140	135	85
Judge Fullerton	180	140	170	125
Camors	80	65	70	60

First Heat.—On the eighth attempt the horses were started, Camors leading, Judge Fullerton second, American Girl third and Gloster fourth, on the outside. Immediately after leaving the score Judge Fullerton broke up, and then Gloster followed suit, but the latter was quickly on his feet, while Fullerton kept up on the break until the other horses were fifty yards away from him. Camors showed the way down to the quarter pole, passing that point half a length in front of American Girl, the latter one length ahead of Gloster, Judge Fullerton ten lengths behind. The time of the quarter was 34¾ seconds. Going around the lower turn American Girl showed her head in front of Camors, but she broke up before reaching the half-mile pole, but kept in front as she passed that point, Camors second, half a length ahead of Gloster, Judge Fullerton being still fifty yards away. Time to the half-mile pole, 1:07. As the horses began to climb the hill of the backstretch, Gloster gained on the others, and as American girl steadied herself into a trot she fell in the rear. Gloster, at the point of rocks, was leading, and he gradually drew away from Camors, until at the three-quarter pole he had nearly two lengths of daylight between them, American Girl four lengths behind. Gloster came home apparently an easy winner by four lengths in 2:20½, Camors second, half a length ahead of American Girl, Judge Fullerton fifty yards behind.

Second Heat.—Gloster was then the favorite, selling for $200, while Judge Fullerton brought $55 and the field $45. Gloster was the first away, Camors second, but soon broke up badly; Judge Fullerton third, American Girl fourth. Gloster broke up as he was descending the stretch to the quarter pole, and American Girl and Fullerton went to that point half a length apart, the mare leading, Fullerton two lengths in front of Gloster, who was eight lengths in advance of Camors. The quarter pole was passed in 35 seconds. Going along the lower turn Gloster was pulled back and American Girl and Judge Fullerton struggled together to the half-mile pole, the mare leading past that point three-quarters of a length in 1:07. American Girl led a length to the point of rocks up the hill, and was a length and a half ahead at the three-quarter pole. She trotted very easily up the homestretch, her driver inviting the driver of Judge Fullerton to "come along." American Girl won the heat by two lengths in 2:22¾, Judge Fullerton fifty yards in front of Camors, who had his head in front of Gloster.

Third Heat.—Gloster still the favorite, selling at $180, American Girl $100, the field $65. Camors led, Judge Fullerton second, Gloster third, American Girl fourth. Judge Fullerton took the lead on the turn. At the quarter pole, which was passed in 34½ seconds, Judge Fullerton led one length, Camors second, one length ahead of Gloster, who had broken up; American Girl a length behind. Camors and Judge Fullerton trotted close together along the lower turn, and as they passed the half-mile, in 1:07½, Fullerton had the best of it by a neck, Camors two lengths in advance of American Girl, the latter two lengths in front of Gloster. The latter then, as he began to climb the hill of the backstretch, rapidly passed Camors, the mare going with Gloster, after Judge Fullerton. At the three-quarter pole Judge Fullerton led one length, Gloster second, one length ahead of American Girl, who was eight lengths in advance of Camors, the latter apparently making no effort to keep up with the others. Gloster trotted rapidly after Judge Fullerton, followed by the mare. The driver of Fullerton commenced whipping at the drawgate, but this was useless, as Gloster was much the faster horse and passed him easily. Gloster came home a winner of the heat by a length. American Girl came in in front of Fullerton by a head. The time of the heat was 2:21.

Fourth Heat.—Gloster sold for $320, all the others as a field $75. Camors had the best of the send-off, Gloster second, American Girl third, Judge Fullerton fourth. American Girl trotted rapidly around the turn and took the lead to the quarter pole, passing that point in 35 seconds, two lengths ahead of Gloster, who was two lengths in front of Camors, the latter two lengths in advance of Judge Fullerton. Going along the lower turn American Girl kept in front, and at the half-mile pole was half a length ahead of Gloster, the latter being eight lengths in advance of Camors, who was about the same distance in front of Judge Fullerton. The latter two were no longer in the race. The half-mile pole was passed in 1:08. Going up the hill of the backstretch American Girl showed the way, and was half a length ahead at the three-quarter pole, but after that Gloster closed on her, drove her to a break, and then, passing her, came home a winner by a length, in 2:21. Camors was third, fifty yards behind, yet six lengths in advance of Judge Fullerton. Gloster won first premium, American Girl the second, Camors the third and Judge Fullerton the fourth prize.

The Second Trot.

First Heat.—George B. Daniels was the favorite, selling for $275, Molsey 75, Heatherbloom $45, and Cora F. and William Turnbull as a field for $50. Molsey was first away, G. B. Daniels second, Heatherbloom third, William Turnbull fourth, Cora F. fifth, and she broke up as soon as the word was given. Molsey and Daniels trotted head and head down the stretch toward the quarter pole: but as they reached that point Daniels went to the front and led half a length in 37 seconds, Molsey second, three lengths ahead of William Turnbull, who was third, two lengths in front of Heatherbloom, Cora F. fifth and at a standstill. George B. Daniels then opened a wide gap on the lower turn and was five lengths in front at the half-mile pole in 1:14, Molsey second, eight lengths ahead of Heatherbloom, Turnbull and Cora F. out of the race. From there to the score Daniels had it all his own way, and he won on a jog by four lengths, Molsey second, eight lengths in advance of Heatherbloom, Cora F. and William Turnbull distanced. Time of the heat 2:29.

Second Heat.—Daniels was a greater favorite than before. The horses had a very good send-off, but before they got well around the turn Daniels broke up and fell in the rear. Molsey was first to the quarter pole in 37½ seconds, leading Heatherbloom two lengths, the latter four lengths ahead of Daniels. Molsey then opened a gap on Heatherbloom and was five lengths in front at the half-mile pole in 1:13, Heatherbloom a neck in advance of Daniels. The latter then passed Heatherbloom, and made an unsuccessful attempt to overtake Molsey. He shut up a great deal of the gap, but at the drawgate he broke up and ran a considerable distance. Molsey trotted steadily and won the heat by two lengths in 2:31½. Heatherbloom was ten lengths behind.

Third Heat.—No betting. Daniels was away first, Molsey second, Heatherbloom close up. Molsey broke up at the quarter pole and a moment later Heatherbloom followed suit. Daniels passed the quarter pole in 36½ seconds. When Molsey and Heatherbloom recovered from their breaks Daniels was fifty yards in front of them. He carried this advantage to the half-mile pole in 1:12, and, coming on easily, won the heat by four lengths in 2:35½. Dan Mace ran Heatherbloom from the three-quarter pole, and saved his distance thereby.

Fourth Heat.—Daniels took the lead, Molsey second, Heatherbloom third. At the quarter pole, which was passed in 37 seconds, Daniels led four lengths, Molsey second, two lengths in front of Heatherbloom. Molsey soon broke up and then the race was over. Daniels went to the half-mile pole fifty yards in front of Heatherbloom, who had passed Molsey on her way thither. Daniels passed the half-mile pole in 1:12. He came on easily and won the heat by six lengths. Molsey second, Heatherbloom third. Time, 2:33½. Geo. B. Daniels won the first premium, Molsey the second, Heatherbloom the third.

WESTCHESTER COUNTY FAIR GROUNDS.

Two Trotting Events—May Bird the Winner of the Three Minute Purse and Fearless the Premium for Three-Year-Olds.

The programme of trotting announced by the Society of Agriculture and Horticulture of Westchester county, and postponed from last week by the storm, was successfully inaugurated yesterday at the fair grounds, White Plains. The attendance, though not large, was of the most respectable character, fully fifty per cent being ladies. There were two events on the card, the first being a purse of $500 for horses that had never beaten three minutes, mile heats, best three in five, in harness. Of eleven entries there came to the score D. B. Goff's bay mare Carrie N., Asa Whitson's roan gelding T. E. Gordon, Dr. Cook's black mare Desdemona, James Patterson's bay mare May Bird and Otis Bort's brown gelding Roadmaster. In the few pools sold before the start May Bird brought even money against the field. She won the race in three straight heats, though she found game and dangerous competitors in both Gordon and Roadmaster. Gordon took second money and Roadmaster third premium.

The second event was a purse of $100, for three-year-olds, mile heats; three of the five entered coming for the work, these being Otis Bort's black mare Fearless, Carpenter's black colt Ed. Jones and R. M. Knapp, Jr.'s, gray colt Meteor. Fearless proved the winner without difficulty, Ed. Jones taking second money. Meteor was drawn after the first heat owing to lameness. Before the three minute purse was called a walking match of half a mile was decided, the society having offered a silver medal for such an event. Three young men—J. Marion Pollock, Charles Jones and John Franklin—trained for the trial and came to the score in appropriate costumes. Jones was awarded the medal, being adjudged the fairest heel and toe walker, though Pollock and Franklin finished in advance in the order named.

THE MYSTIC PARK RACES.

BOSTON, Sept. 21, 1874.

The Mystic Park running meeting, postponed from last week on account of rain, was continued to-day. The attendance was very good.

THE FIRST RACE

was for the Ladies Stake, for two-year-olds, $30 entrance, half forfeit, $300 added. Of the seven entries only three came to the post, viz.:—Enlister, Ino and Elmwood. Enlister was the favorite at slight odds over Ino and won in fifty-two seconds, Ino second and Elmwood third.

THE SECOND RACE

was for the Morris Club purse of $400, mile and a half, for all ages; $300 to the first, $75 to the second, $25 to the third. The starters were Lizzie Lucas, B. F. Carver, Lorena, Stockwood and Eclair. In the betting Lizzie Lucas was the favorite at two to one over the field, and won after a warm contest with B. F. Carver. Time, 2:40.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

Again Do the Chicago "Giants" Come Out the Little End of the Horn.

The eighth game of the championship series between the Mutual Club and the Chicago Giants was played on the Union Grounds yesterday afternoon, and, notwithstanding the Mutuals played Higham a centre field, Allison behind the bat and Phelps in right field, the wonderful ball-tossers from the West were beaten two to one with the utmost ease. The game was very poorly played by both sides.

This victory places the Mutuals even on the list with the Bostons—each having won thirty-two games—and as the "Mutes" are playing a better game than their red-legged rivals their chances of winning the championship are bright indeed.

Appended is the score by innings of yesterday's match:—

RUNS SCORED EACH INNINGS.

Clubs.	1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.	5th.	6th.	7th.	8th.	9th.
Chicago Giants	0	2	0	0	0	1	0	2	2—7
Mutual	0	4	2	3	1	4	0	1	0—14

Runs earned—Mutual, 4; Giants, 0.
Umpire—Wm. McClene, of Philadelphia.
Time of game—2 hours and 5 minutes.

The Athletics Beat the Atlantics.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 21, 1874.

In a game of base ball played here to-day, between the Atlantic and Athletic Base Ball clubs, the Athletics were victorious, the score being 7 to 1.

The Philadelphia and Boston Clubs.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 21, 1874.

The Philadelphia and Boston clubs played a game of base ball here to-day. The Philadelphia Club won; score, 10 to 8.

Base Ball Notes.

The Atlantics play the Hartfords this afternoon on the Union Grounds.

The Amateurs, of this city, have organized a picked ten to play against Brooklyn on Wednesday afternoon. It is not generally known whether or not Brooklyn has selected her ten as yet. If not it had better be done to-day, as no time can now be lost. It is doubtful if the following ten can be improved upon:—Rule, pitcher; Redmane, catcher; Devine, first base; West, second base; Brasher, short stop; Doscher, third base; Valentine, left field; Pike, centre field; Dunn, right field, and Clare, right short. The New York players strenuously object to going to Prospect Park to play the game, and hold that it should be contested on the Union Grounds, which are accessible to all. Mr. Cammeyer says he will give $50 to the winning party to be turned over to any charitable purpose they may elect. Now let the Brooklyn clubs hold a meeting to-night in the Nameless Club rooms, and settle this matter at once.

SHOOTING AT CREEDMOOR.

Representatives from several regiments practised at Creedmoor yesterday. The weather was all that could be desired and the scores were generally first class. The boat race between Brown and Morris, to come off on the Kenebeccasis on the 25th inst., is creating considerable interest. Brown is the favorite, but Morris has many backers among Americans, who are arriving daily. Both men are in training and exercise on the course every day.

A BALLSTON SPA MYSTERY.

Whose Boy is Detained in the Backwoods?—The Missing Child Unknown in Brooklyn.

In this epoch of speculation as to the whereabouts of the missing boy, Charley Ross, and the uncertainty as to his fate, the public mind is deeply interested in all reported discoveries that may lead to his ultimate recovery. Ballston Spa, Saratoga county, New York, is in a state of great anxiety as to the antecedents of a boy about ten years of age, who for the past two or three months has been kept by an old woman in a backwoods place near that far famed resort of invalids. The custodian of the boy (who cannot possibly be Charley Ross) was in the habit of receiving money from Brooklyn by mail, and a resident of that place, availing himself of this fact to obtain a clew to the child's relatives, wrote the following letter to the Brooklyn police, which elicited the reply also annexed:—

BALLSTON SPA, SARATOGA CO., Sept. 19, 1874.

TO THE CHIEF OF POLICE OF BROOKLYN, L. I.:—

There is a boy kept by a woman in a backwoods place near here. The boy is about ten years old, and the woman say sixty years old. The boy says he used to live in Brooklyn.

He is not allowed to talk, as he is watched closely by the woman. This woman receives money from Brooklyn to pay their expenses. Has been in the neighborhood two or three months. Is there any boy missing from your neighborhood answering to the above? If so please inform us by the return mail. Yours truly,

COLE & COMSTOCK.

THE REPLY.

Sept. 21, 1874.

MESSRS. COLE & COMSTOCK:—

GENTLEMEN—The records have been searched and no information is obtained from them in relation to a boy being missed from this city, nor can I give any information that would lead to the discovery of who the boy is. Thanking you for your letter, I am yours,

JOHN S. FOLK, Superintendent Police.

A POSSIBLE DISCOVERY.

Mr. William B. Brink, collector for the Greenpoint Ferry Company, visited Police Headquarters, corner of Court and Livingston streets, Brooklyn, at a late hour last night, and informed Sergeant Frost, of the detective squad, that, having read the story of the boy who is detained by the old woman in the woods near Ballston Spa, Saratoga county, he had formed the idea that the child might possibly be his own missing son. Mr. Brink then stated that his boy, Charles F. Brink, nine years of age, had been missing ever since May 24. The boy, who is of light complexion, had on when last seen dark blue pants and jacket and black cap. His parents have advertised for him all over the country, and have requested that information concerning him be sent to their residence, No. 206 Kent avenue, Greenpoint. Mr. Brink will go on to Ballston to-day for the purpose of identifying and claiming the boy should he prove to be his long lost son.

GOING TO JAIL.

James E. Gaffney, George Cromer and M. R. Davis were locked up last night at the Central Office for safe keeping at the request of United States marshals from South Carolina, who are conducting the prisoners to the Albany Penitentiary. They are sentenced for the crimes of robbing the mails and violations of the internal revenue laws. They will continue their journey to jail to-day.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

An Active Stock Market, With Firm Prices.

GOLD 109 1-2 A 109 5-8.

WALL STREET, MONDAY, Sept. 21—6 P. M.

Stocks opened strong this morning, with only slight reactions. Union Pacific advanced to 36⅛, Western Union to 78⅛, ex dividend of 2 per cent, and Lake Shore to 76⅛. Erie rose to 36, in sympathy with the London market. Hannibal and St. Joseph advanced to 28 for the common and 33 for the preferred, with a subsequent reaction in the common to 27. New York Central rose to 100⅞, Rock Island to 101⅞, Northwest to 36⅜, Wabash to 32⅛, St. Paul to 33⅛, and C., C. and I. C. to 11⅞. In the afternoon dealings stocks were strong and higher. Union Pacific advanced to 36⅛, Erie to 36⅜, New York Central to 101, Northwest to 37⅛, Ohios to 24⅝, and Pacific Mail to 48⅛. Gold sold at 109⅛. Stocks were active and buoyant at the close, when the highest prices of the day were made. The advance was very general, and in some cases quite marked. Erie advanced to 37 on the buoyancy of the London market and the prospect of a favorable report from the accountants this week. Union Pacific advanced to 36⅞ on large dealings. The departure of the president and directors of the Union Pacific for a tour to the Pacific coast was looked upon as having some significance in regard to future railroad movements. Western Union advanced to 78⅜, Northwest to 37⅛, New York Central to 101⅛, Rock Island to 102, St. Paul to 33⅛, C. C. & I. C. to 11⅞ and Ohios to 24⅝. MUSICAL.

AMONG OUR MUSICAL ADVERTISEMENTS YESterday appeared a card reflecting upon Mr. Henry Mollenhauer's capacity as a teacher and stating that he was never President or Musical Director of the New York Conservatory of Music.

We deem it our duty to rectify the false statements contained in this advertisement and to state that Mr. Mollenhauer was for about two years President and Musical Director of the New York Conservatory of Music and one of the proprietors of the Brooklyn Branch of that institution; that he left it from choice, and that both as a musician and as a teacher of the piano as well as of stringed instruments he deserves the very high reputation which he has always enjoyed.

TRIPLE SHEET.

New York, Tuesday, Sept. 22, 1874.

From our reports this morning the probabilities are that the weather to-day will be partly cloudy or clear.

WALL STREET YESTERDAY.—The stock market was active and closed strong. Gold, 109½ a 109⅝.

THE RACES AT FLEETWOOD PARK YESTERDAY were decidedly interesting, Gloster winning the ten thousand dollar race and making fine time, considering the state of the track. George B. Daniels won the second race.

THE Irish Times has informed its readers that Mrs. Woodhull leads the free love wing of Plymouth church. This is only a Hibernian method of expressing a lamentable fact.

THE MONEY ORDER Department of the Post Office is one of the most useful, and the extent to which it is employed is shown by the fact that last year nearly $75,000,000 of orders were issued.

THE EIGHTEENTH EXCURSION of the Floating Hospital took place yesterday, and four hundred and fifty-four invalids enjoyed the trip. Among the affecting incidents of the day was the death of a baby, who was brought on board in an almost hopeless condition.

WOMEN who advertise for employment ought to be secure from insult, and a step towards their security has been made by the arrest of an Italian who has been sending indecent answers to advertisements. Cases of the kind are rare, we believe, and the punishment of the scamp will make them rarer still.

THE GOVERNMENT investigating committee has begun its labors in New Orleans, but is unlikely to report anything the newspapers have not already made known. General Emory bears testimony to the good faith of the surrender of the McEnery party.

THE POLICE.—A general order has been issued for the better regulation of the police. One rule is for the management of the station houses, and another requires policemen to wear the uniform when not upon duty. As many of the recent outrages of policemen have been committed when they were in plain clothes this change is likely to be a reform.

THE PHILADELPHIANS are disturbed by the mysterious escape of two prisoners who were accused of robbing the United States of $180,000. These men had been in prison for five or six months and were discharged by an order of Judge Paxson, the order being served between the prison van and the court, contrary to rule. After this event it was discovered that detainers had been lodged against them by the authorities of another city, and it is believed that they owe their liberty to some improper connivance. The Philadelphia papers speak with considerable indignation on the subject, but with more caution, the State having a libel law which, except in unusual cases, acts as an effective muzzle to journalism. For this reason it is unlikely that the responsibility for the escape of the prisoners from justice will be fixed upon any particular person, especially as the officers of the Court have been acquitted. The Ledger thinks there should have been a full hearing; but this, upon some technicality, was denied.

The Problem in Louisiana—Mr. Reverdy Johnson's Opinion.

We print elsewhere a statesmanlike letter from the venerable and distinguished Reverdy Johnson, in which he discusses the Louisiana question. In the ancient times the State was well served when the elder men, or the "Alder"-men as they came to be called, were summoned to give counsel in affairs of State. In the advice of the aged there is safety. Time, experience, opportunity, responsibility ripen the intellect, and teach that calmness which is in many respects the truest statesmanship. Reverdy Johnson is now an old man, long past the time assigned by the Psalmist as the measure of human life. It is more than fifty years since he entered the Maryland Senate, and he may, therefore, be said to have celebrated the golden wedding of his public career. Thirty years ago he was a Senator in Congress, when Webster, Calhoun, Clay and Crittenden were Senators. A quarter of a century since he was a member of a Cabinet in which Clayton and Collamer held seats. Serving the Union, as he did, during the larger part of his life, as the representative of a slave State, he had the felicitous courage to give his earnest support to the Union. We owe to Reverdy Johnson more, perhaps, than to any other citizen of Maryland the fact that we were enabled to keep that restless and reluctant State within the limits of the federation.

Upon a question like this of Louisiana it is eminently proper that Reverdy Johnson should be heard, and at a time especially when, in the honors we are paying to John A. Dix, Havemeyer, Tilden, Governor Allen, of Ohio; Thurlow Weed and other centennial statesmen, we show a disposition to listen to our "Alder"-men and not run heedlessly off into wild ways of the younger heads, that so often lead to misery and disappointment. Mr. Johnson, with the calm precision of a lawyer, looks at the Louisiana case from three points of view. First, he asks, Was the President right in recognizing the Kellogg government? Second, if he was not, had the people the right to drive Kellogg from power by force of arms? And, thirdly, has the President the right to restore Kellogg and the government of which he is the head?

In discussing these propositions Mr. Johnson makes an argument singularly like the view of the case presented by the HERALD when the revolution first took place in Louisiana. The President certainly committed an error when he recognized Kellogg as the legitimate Governor. He apparently adopted this course in obedience to a decree of the United States District Court of Louisiana. But, as Mr. Johnson shows, the question whether a State government has been legitimately established is political, not judicial, and does not come within the authority of a federal tribunal, the inquiries necessary to establish the claim are of such a character that it must be obvious no federal court can have appropriate jurisdiction. In the case of Arkansas, where two contestants came to the verge of civil war, the President interfered against Brooks, who claimed the office by virtue of a process of the court, and in behalf of Baxter, who rested his claim solely upon political grounds. Mr. Johnson cites the well known decision of Chief Justice Taney in the "Dorr rebellion" case in Rhode Island, to which the HERALD called attention the other day. In this decision, rendered by Chief Justice Taney and unanimously concurred in by the Court, it was expressly held that the inquiry whether a government exists in any State is political, and not judicial, or, to use the exact language of the Court, the question "belonged to the political power and not to the judicial." In such a decision, as the HERALD showed when presenting this case to the President as a guide of action, the determination of the Executive is conclusive. Therefore, as Mr. Johnson so cogently reasons, if Judge Durell had no authority to pass upon the validity of Kellogg's election, the President, likewise, had no authority to accept his "decision" as binding upon his own executive action. The responsibility was the President's in the first place, and he cannot now undo or escape its consequences.

The question as to how far the President's error in the recognition of Kellogg should affect his action in dealing with the Penn revolution is answered by Mr. Johnson upon precisely the grounds advanced by the HERALD. The Penn party had no right but that of revolution. "A right of revolution," as Mr. Johnson truly says, "can never be supposed to exist under an established government. Such a right, indeed, supposes no existing legal authority, but asserts itself upon natural and elementary principles, such as are stated in the Declaration of Independence." However praiseworthy and undeniable these principles may be, they cannot enter into the sovereignty of the Union. As Mr. Johnson so clearly puts it: "Each State is bound to the other States and to the United States, and the obligation is such that a right by force to change her form of government is not possessed by her, as its exercise might interfere with the relation she bears to her sister States as to the paramount authority of the United States." This logic is unanswerable. As we showed during the progress of the Penn revolution, if any combination of people could overthrow a government legal in form and in the unchallenged exercise of authority, no matter how grievously it oppressed the people, there would be an end of this Republic. It would be that appeal from the ballot to the barricade which has been the misfortune of democracy in France. We should fall by a process of disintegration worse even than secession into anarchy. We should become, like those Central American or Mexican republics, governed by pronunciamentoes—volcanic in their formation and constantly breaking into fire, flame, smoke and massacre.

Mr. Johnson, with due and marked courtesy, disclaims any apprehension that the President can have a personal wish to tyrannize, or to permit others to tyrannize, over any State in the Union. "His past renown," says the great jurist, "would be nothing to him if he permitted himself to be governed by any such motives." He then asks how far the President can interpose to give relief to the people of Louisiana. He takes the ground that the President in recognizing the Kellogg contrivance exhausted his jurisdiction over the subject and made it a legal government, and as much entitled to federal protection as the government of New York or of Pennsylvania. There is, therefore, no act which he can constitutionally adopt that will dissolve the Kellogg rule. We can understand how, in the event of continual commotion, turmoil, the persecution of the freedmen in the interior parishes of the State, or the manifest inability of the government to exercise its natural necessary functions, the President might interfere and proclaim martial law. This, however, would be an unconstitutional, and, without extreme cause, an unjustifiable act, akin to President Lincoln's suspension of habeas corpus in 1861. Mr. Lincoln violated the constitution and incurred the risk of impeachment. Public danger demanded his act. Public opinion approved it and Congress sustained him when it came together. But the perils which invited from Mr. Lincoln this arbitrary exercise of power do not exist in Louisiana. The country is at peace, and what we do must be done within the forms of the constitution.

There is, therefore, no constitutional solution of this problem but that which the HERALD has proposed and which Mr. Johnson cordially accepts—namely, the resignation by Kellogg and McEnery and all their subordinates of all power or pretence to power and a new election by the people. "If," says Mr. Johnson, with eloquent truth, "they are governed by patriotic motives, and desire to restore tranquillity to their State, they will not hesitate to take such a step. That Kellogg can desire to retain a position which is so adverse to the feeling of the State, and which it is obvious he would not be able to hold a day without the aid of federal troops, seems to me to be equally unpatriotic and dishonorable. But upon such a question the man Kellogg is the judge, and as he may judge it will he meet with the applause or condemnation of the country." In expressing these views this venerable statesman gives voice to the honest conservative sentiment of the country, without distinction of party. Mr. Kellogg and his friends can give no better evidence of their fealty to the Union, of their patriotic regard for the people of Louisiana and their desire for the happiness of all classes, black and white, than to hearken to this appeal from one of the most honored and illustrious of the nation's "Alder"-men.

The Republican State Convention.

As a nation is deemed fortunate in periods when its annals are dull, so a political party has reason to congratulate itself when its nominating conventions excite but little interest. Wars, revolutions and civil convulsions furnish materials to the historian and impart animation to his pages, and in like manner a political convention which gives promise of a great row causes the public to prick up its ears with expectation. The Charleston Convention of 1860, which broke up the democratic party, was watched with deep interest, as the recent Convention at Syracuse was in a smaller way. If, as seemed probable last Tuesday, Judge Church had given, if not his consent, his connivance, his friends would have presented a strong array and have enlisted most of the unpledged delegates. Tilden's opponents failed only because they had no candidate, and after Church failed them it was too late to extemporize one on whom they could unite. On the assembling of the delegates there was uncertainty enough to excite the kind of interest which attends a game of chance, and passionate animosity enough to divide the sympathies of the spectators. The play did not come up to the promise of the bills, but it kept attention awake till the dénouement.

The Convention which meets at Utica tomorrow will be comparatively flat and tame, like a race in which only one horse is entered and it is known that he will walk over the course. There will be no strenuous caucusing in the Utica hotels to-night, no watching the trains to see who will first get hold of the arriving delegates. So far as relates to the Governorship the Convention will be a mere registering body to authenticate the selection already made by the spontaneous preference of the republican voters. The proceedings will not excite much more interest than a ratification meeting. Nor is this by any means a factitious unanimity or false appearance of unanimity, like that sometimes produced by an active clique which steals a march on rivals and gets a convention securely packed. The universal agreement to nominate Dix is a necessity imposed on the delegates by the unconstrained choice of the party. The most powerful republican clique is that which centres in the Custom House, but that clique has not lifted a finger to promote the candidature of Dix. Its leaders would have preferred one of their own confederates, but the will of the people was too manifest for even a show of resistance. If the Utica Convention is a mere registering body its office is to register the well known preference of the republican masses, not the decree of a wire-pulling clique. A great body of soured and disgusted delegates will not return to their homes to render heartless lip service to the ticket. No republican journals will have to face about, as some of the democratic organs have done, and support a nomination which they had publicly deprecated. Unless some wholly unlooked for change should take place in the relations of the republican factions there will be no quarrel to be composed or insults to be pocketed by the supporters of Governor Dix. The harmonious action of the Convention, in obedience to the united wishes of the republican voters, will make the republican canvass an easy launch in smooth water, and present a striking contrast to the Convention of last week.

THE MISER AND THE SPENDTHRIFT.—Radical agitators in England have reported Queen Victoria a miser. It appears on the other hand that the Prince of Wales is a spendthrift and that his mother has undertaken the settlement of his debts to the extent of three millions. How fortunate for the Prince it is that the Queen can save him even to the extent of three millions!

THE BRITISH CLAIMANTS under the Treaty of Washington were yesterday paid, through their agents, $1,929,819, in gold, less two and a half per cent allowed for expenses, and the country is well pleased that they will get their money. But the claims of American citizens upon the $15,000,000 awarded by the Geneva arbitrators have not been paid. At its next session Congress cannot neglect this act of justice without incurring heavier censure than its past quibbling and indifference have received from the impartial public.

The True Indian Policy—The Army the Only Effective Agent of the Government.

The Eastern States have ceased to understand the Indians, because they have been for many years deprived of their society. They have become greater curiosities than the Chinese, who were once marvels but are now commonplace laundrymen; and when a tribe of chiefs, squaws and pappooses comes from the far West to the Eastern cities it is taken in charge by the government or the Young Men's Christian Association and exhibited as a wonderful novelty. An Indian in full costume on Broadway would attract nearly as much attention as a bull in a china shop, though he would probably do less damage. Indians, in fact, are more common in the spirit than in the flesh, for no good spiritual medium would be without some dead chief or medicine man to tell us the secrets of the world beyond the grave. But the real living Indian of to-day exists for us only by the telegraph and the correspondent.

This actual ignorance of the Indian nature is increased by the traditions we have of the great tribes which long ago disappeared. We confound the Indian of to-day with the Indian of the past. King Philip, Tecumseh, Osceola, Uncas and Mohegan, the chiefs of fact and fiction, are to us the same as Red Cloud, Little Swan, Cochise, Big Bear and other warriors of the prairie. Our ideas of the Indian nature are, to a great extent, derived from the novels of Cooper and poems like Campbell's "Gertrude of Wyoming." We imagine the red man of the West to be noble, chivalrous, hospitable; something like the Arab of the desert, or the ideal Italian bandit, the romantic Fra Diavolo of the opera. This is as great an error as it would be to confuse Lord Byron's Corsair with the bloody, murderous Greek brigands who have made the Plain of Marathon as infamous in modern times as it is glorious in history. There were two races of Indians when America was first settled, and those of the East were certainly the far superior. We admit the truthfulness of Cooper's novels. There was something noble in the Pequots, the Mohicans and the Lenni Lenapes. And as these historic Indians were cruel in war they were capable of noble actions in peace. Even John Randolph, of Roanoke, one of the proudest of Virginians, boasted of his descent from the Indian Princess, Pocahontas. Captain Rolfe married her and took her to England, but he would probably have made different arrangements had he met one of the dusky heroines of New Mexico or Colorado. There are no Indian princesses now; there are only squaws. The Indians of the Atlantic States seem to have been a race of savages who had honorable traits. They were intellectual, self-respecting and faithful to their pledges. Our forefathers dealt with the Six Nations, whose rule extended from Massachusetts to the lakes, and with the Lenni Lenapes, whose dominion reached from the Delaware far beyond the Susquehanna, upon almost equal terms. Treaties were made with great chiefs which were as often kept as treaties are now in Europe, and the savage was sometimes nobler than the white man. These aboriginal tribes were far superior to those which now exist. The Six Nations and the Delawares should not be compared with the Comanches, the Sioux and the Pawnees of the Plains. The differences between the Atlantic and what may be called the Pacific tribes were not merely social, but, to a certain extent, ethnological. The superior tribes are now almost entirely extinct.

Thus, as our ideas of the Indian may be said to be derived from Cooper, our Indian policy is derived from Penn. The Quakers of Pennsylvania imagine that they can deal with a Modoc as William Penn did with a Delaware, and they have tried the experiment out West. But General Canby lost his life in the lava beds, and some of the commissioners narrowly escaped with their scalps. These Quaker philanthropists not only forget the difference of race, the marked distinction between the Indians of the Alleghany Mountains and New England and those of the Plains, but they also fail to consider the influence of time upon the latter. It is nearly three hundred years since William Penn bought an empire for a few beads, and since then the Indians have learned to hate the whites. Persecution, whiskey and war have made them revengeful, treacherous and cruel, and Penn's scalp would be taken by a Pawnee now as coolly as a glass of rum. No longer are the friendly counsels of "the children of Miquon" listened to by the Indian. He believes in rations and rum, getting drunk all winter and hunting the buffalo and stealing horses in the summer. The forest child of to-day is generally pretty much of a thief and a good deal of a rowdy, and has acquired all the vices of the whites without even one of their virtues. As our conceptions of the Indian character and our Indian policy are both founded upon traditions, and not upon the facts of the present, it is not surprising that we should have an Indian war every summer, and that the government should spend millions of dollars without any useful results. It is certainly full time for the country to ask William Penn to retire from a task he is unable to perform. He cannot civilize the Indians, and they are simply becoming more barbarous under his failure to manage them. The true way for the government to deal with these savages of the Plains is by the army. The army, in fact, is depended upon to manage them in every emergency, and it alone stands between the frontier settlers and devastation and death. But whenever the Indians have enough of war they surrender and make their own terms. They demand the protection of peace commissioners and agents, and live on the rations and the bounty of the government. As the army is, in fact, responsible for the Indians in time of war, we think it should have the full control of them in peace. It could then maintain by its moral influence the peace it annually has to enforce by arms, instead of seeing all the good it has accomplished undone by divided rule. The army is the only power the Indians know and respect, and it ought to have full control of them, and be held responsible for the result. This is General Sheridan's idea of the true Indian policy, and the sooner the country adopts it the better will it be for both the Indians and the whites.

THE ARRIVAL IN AMERICA of the well known collection of Spanish paintings belonging to the Duc de Montpensier is an art event of unusual importance. As will be seen from the critical review which we publish in another column the works composing it cover the grandest period of Spanish art. Only in a few European galleries could anything like the same facilities to study the development of this remarkable school be enjoyed as this collection now presents to the American public. In consenting to loan his splendid collection the Duke has done a graceful act, which cannot fail to be properly appreciated. Though the collection is not large it is very valuable, and affords students and amateurs ample opportunity to make themselves acquainted with the characteristics of Spanish painting in its various developments. The occasion ought not to be neglected, for it may be long before a similar opportunity will occur again. Boston will enjoy the educational benefits to be derived from the presence of the paintings for one year, and we hope the directors of our Art Museum will take steps to procure for the citizens of New York an opportunity of examining this representative collection of the best Spanish art.

The Lesson of the Scandal.

The printing of Mr. Tilton's statement brings to a close what may be called the "Trial by Newspaper" of the present controversy. It is nearly four months since Mr. Tilton, by the publication of his letter to Dr. Bacon, began this extraordinary scandal. During these four months the country has suffered from a worse than Egyptian plague. Better that the waters had turned into blood, so that the fishes in the rivers had died; better the plague of frogs and of flies corrupting the land; better the murrain, the locusts or the horrible darkness; we might even say better that last awful blow which fell upon Pharaoh's people before they would let God's chosen people go, than this dreadful visitation which for four months has fallen upon the American people. No event of this generation has brought more evil in its train. We can well respect, even if we do not in strict justice approve, of the efforts of men like General Tracy, General Butler, Mr. Kinsella, and even of Mr. Moulton, before the mania for publishing the ill-spelled letters of a foolish old woman came upon him, to suppress this scandal and prevent all the evil that has been done to Christianity, public morality, social order and good faith between man and man.

The scandal remains, although the "Trial by Newspaper" ends. We enter upon the uncertain chances of a trial by jury. What the result of that trial may be, or whether there will be a trial, which many doubt, it would be vain to speculate. But certain moral issues have been settled, and upon these we can dwell now. There is an end of what may be called the Religion of Gush. For many years Plymouth church, under the ministrations of a clergyman of incomparable eloquence, has been worshipping sentiment rather than revelation, generosity in place of truth, kindness in the place of faith, the eloquence of one man, rather than the teachings of the Master, Henry Ward Beecher in the place of Jesus Christ. Religion has not been a matter of discipline or duty, with rewards and punishments—only a day's picnic in the woods. No matter what deviation from the codes that, written on the tables of stone at Sinai, have been the granite foundations of every Christian Church, no matter how far we might stray from these unalterable laws, all was bright on Sunday morning, all our sins were forgotten in the eloquence of Henry Ward Beecher. There was no punishment, no discipline! Life had no necessary duties. Sin as we might, there was always a welcome and a blessing at the altar of Plymouth church.

The fruit of this religion may be seen in the men and women who have contributed to this scandal. Mr. Moulton has informed us that he is a heathen, and we may except him from any ecclesiastical responsibilities. But what a strange phenomenon is this "Christian charity" of Plymouth church! What tides of hatred, slander, defamation, have been ever sweeping under the placid surface of Brooklyn Christianity! Lay aside the supreme question at issue and look at the revelations which come to us in side flashes. Bowen on Beecher, Moulton on Bowen, Moulton on Shearman, Tilton degrading his wife, defaming Mrs. Beecher and attacking Kingsley and Kinsella, with the poor old stricken Mrs. Morse commenting on the whole party and the world in general! This sad, stricken old woman comes into the play as a tragi-comic chorus, a kind of Meg Merriles, evidently insane, but with a capacity for direct and honest speech. We do not know but that as a juryman we should accept her as the most credible witness that has appeared. Think also of the cruel, infamous slander on Miss Procter, which makes us marvel if men have really forgotten their manhood. Think of the incredible baseness of dragging Mrs. Beecher into the public prints merely to insult her husband. Then we have the ravens and unclean birds, and base, creeping things, headed by Elizabeth Cady Stanton, who cannot remain away from the carcass. It is a sad sight to see these women, some gray in years and with honored ripening lives, making themselves carrion birds; such a woman as Mrs. Stanton, for instance, apostrophizing the uproarious Frank Moulton as a Christ, because he went to Plymouth church with a kind of fireman's instinct for a row, and was satisfied. But, after all, it is for the best. If the buzzard is a buzzard it is better that we know it before we proceed to do it turkey honors. And it this woman's suffrage movement is really the pretence for a war upon every tradition and teaching that men call holy, upon marriage, home, virtue—then blessed be the day that the truth became known! Mrs. Stanton's work is at an end. Mrs. Woodhull was right. She has seen the meaning of the "reform," and is henceforth its true queen and leader. Mrs. Stanton becomes simply a patient, willing, efficient, we may say officious follower of Mrs. Woodhull in the scavenger business of "suffrage" and "reform."

There is also the end of many things. When Carlyle comes to the close of his French Revolution he makes a grotesque apostrophe to the destroying angels who brought that terrible catastrophe: "Imposture is in flames. Imposture is burnt up." "Higher, higher yet flames the fire sea; crackling with new dislocated timber; hissing with leather and prunella. The metal images are molten, the marble images become mortar-lime; the stone mountains sulkily explode." "The images all run into amorphous Corinthian brass," "for it is the end of the dominion of Imposture." Something like this we have seen in Brooklyn. The fire has been intense, and from it have come nauseating odors; vileness and sin have covered the land; sorrows, misery, distress have come upon thousands who will no longer have that confiding trust in religion and professions of faith. But better the fire. Sentiment the religion of gush, cant, hypocrisy, affinities; Beecherism, which is the worship of phrases and personal gratification; Tiltonism, which is the worship of selfishness, woman's suffrage, gossip; Bowenism, which is the reducing the Ten Commandments and all the Gospels into a stock list—all have fallen into the fire and are destroyed. Many, many years will pass before we shall cease to see the black ashes that are strewn over Plymouth church, the crumbling ruins and the ghastly crumbling walls. Many, many years will pass before the thousands who loved Henry Ward Beecher will cease to mourn over his fate. This is the sorrow of the Brooklyn scandal. The value of it is the burning up of the imposture which has long reigned there, and which has been falsely called "religion" and "reform."

The Third Term at Utica.

It is widely believed that the ruling managers of the republican party of the State are at the bottom of the movement looking to the election of General Grant for a third term. It is the prevailing opinion, apparently, that the Republican State Convention, which meets at Utica to-morrow, will be as reticent as General Grant himself upon this question of a third term. The liberals of this Commonwealth have pronounced against any departure from the Presidential limitation of two terms, as established from the example of Washington; the democrats have emphatically seconded the liberal protest; and now, if the republicans of the Empire State, like their brethren of Pennsylvania, Kansas and Michigan, proclaim their adhesion to the two-term limitation, the question will be settled. Otherwise Messrs. Blaine, Conkling, Morton, Logan, Butler and other hopeful republican aspirants for the succession may take it easy and resign themselves to the necessity of waiting yet a little longer. The issue depends very much upon the action of the impending Republican Convention at Utica.

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

Riot at Aspinwall—Italian Laborers and Soldiers in Bloody Conflict.

ASPINWALL, Sept. 12, 1874.

A serious riot, attended with bloodshed, took place here this afternoon, about half-past four o'clock, between the Italians in the employ of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and the troops on duty here. It appears that one of the soldiers, unarmed, was on the wharf, and was chased off by some of the Italians, who threw stones at him. On arriving at his quarters he reported the case, when an officer and six men went at once to the wharf to arrest those who had made the assault. On reaching the gate one of two pistol shots at the troops without result, when a volley was fired in return, which mortally wounded one of the Italians and seriously wounded a Jamaica negro, whose leg will have to be amputated. The excitement is intense and additional troops have been sent for to keep the peace. California passengers, who arrived just after the occurrence, were placed safely on board the steamer Acapulco.

That no more were hurt is wonderful, as the volley was fired just outside the gate and directly up the wharf. Mr. Corwine, General Agent; Commodore Gray and Superintendent Thompson, were just outside the line of fire and the wharf was full of laborers.

Matters are quiet now, but the troops will be welcome.

COLONEL MILES' EXPEDITION.

A Canard Exploded—The Troops Falling Back for Supplies—Desperate Attack on a Supply Train—The Killed and Wounded.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 21, 1874.

Special despatches were sent out from Quincy, Ill., last night concerning alleged Indian depredations near Camp Supply, Indian Territory, and declaring that Colonel Miles had been compelled to fall back to meet his supplies; that he had telegraphed General Pope for reinforcements; that one large supply train of thirty-six wagons had been captured, the Assistant Wagon Master had been killed, and the men compelled to abandon the train, after a desperate resistance, bringing twenty-seven wounded into camp; that 300 stands of arms, together with a large amount of ammunition and commissary stores, had fallen into the hands of the savages; that the Eighth cavalry had come in from Arizona entirely destitute, having lost all their supply and baggage trains, and joined Colonel Miles' command.

On inquiry at headquarters the story proves to be untrue, or so slightly founded as to be virtually a canard. From official despatches received by Lieutenant General Sheridan, are obtained. Colonel Miles, in a despatch dated on the 5th inst., seventy-five miles south of Red River, advised General Pope that he should fall back for supplies. His despatch, received by General Sheridan to-day, is dated from his camp on the Wachita River, September 14, and came via Fort Dodge, leaving there on the 17th. He says:—

THE REAL FACTS

I find that after leaving the Canadian River Major Lyman, commanding the escort to the supply train, was attacked by from 300 to 400 Indians on the morning of the 9th inst. The Indians charged the train several times and made every effort to capture it, fighting so determinedly as to detain it for three days. The fight was very close and the train was completely surrounded. On the third day the Indians abandoned the attack, retreating southwest. From all the information I can get here since my arrival I believe they formed no part of the body we drove off the Staked Plains, and they were believed to have been led by Satanta and Big Tree.

THE KILLED AND WOUNDED.

During the fight Lieutenant Lewis, Fifth infantry, was severely wounded in the knee; Sergeant Dearmon, Company I, Fifth infantry, was killed; Sergeant Single, Sixth cavalry; Private Burk, Fifth infantry, and Wagon Master Sandford were wounded, the latter mortally. The officers estimate the number of Indians killed at fifteen and the wounded many more. Private Pettijohn, of the Sixth cavalry, was killed near the camp on McClellan Creek on the 11th. Lieutenant Baldwin will have informed you of his successful encounter with Indians while coming in as bearer of despatches. A part of the force that attacked Major Lyman attacked a party of six bearing despatches, who entrenched themselves in the sand, and after a desperate fight all day, in which one courier was killed and four wounded, they compelled the Indians to retire, having killed twelve. Whenever we have fought them they have been severely punished, with comparatively slight loss on our side. The rivers to the south are now so swollen as to be impassable for wagons. I am building a bridge across the Wachita. The cavalry were obliged to swim their horses on returning. The march back was even more exhausting than the advance, even with the Indians in our front, owing to the terrible and continuous rains which flooded the streams and made the roads almost impassable, from which facts, as well as because but half rations of forage were furnished and the Indians had destroyed much of the grass, the animals have come in exhausted and somewhat worn down.

This command now occupies the valleys of McClellan Creek, Sweet Water and the Wachita. Major Price's command is camped near us, acting independently.

General Pope, in a communication enclosing Colonel Miles' report, says that Colonel Miles has force enough to beat any force that can be met.

The Corralled Supply Train—Indians Avoiding a General Engagement.

TOPEKA, Kansas, Sept. 21, 1874.

Information from the scene of operations against the Indians in the Southwest is to the effect that a train of supplies corralled by Indians on the Washita was released by a force from Camp Supply on the 14th inst., and in continuing its journey south was met by General Miles' command, which went into camp about fifteen miles south of the Canadian River.

The Indians are moving south and apparently trying to avoid a general engagement.

THE UTICA CONVENTION.

Preliminary Movements of the Republican Gathering To-Morrow.

The Candidature for Lieutenant Governor.

Uneasiness of the Managers on the Third Term Question.

The Prominent Leaders in Attendance.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 21, 1874.

If the enthusiasm that every good republican in the State believes will prevail at the Convention here on Wednesday can be measured by the present dreary outlook, so far as the prospect of a large attendance is concerned, there will be awful disappointment day after to-morrow. Not even one of the State Committee has put in an appearance, and the only two strangers of importance in town, as yet, who are in any way interested in the Convention, are Lieutenant Governor Robinson, who seeks a renomination, and Judge Edwards S. Peirrepont, who heads the delegation from the Sixth district of New York city. Even the few rural delegates who came on Saturday went away yesterday. At least they are nowhere to be found, and the dozen or so of canal patriots, who had come down from their snuggeries expecting to find some of the "big guns" lying about loose, have made themselves scarce. It may be that they were "gobbled" by John Kelly, who passed through the city early this morning on his way home, fully primed and cocked to blow Havemeyer and Waterbury to atoms. But as he did not stop over here long enough to put anybody in his pocket the horrible supposition must fall to the ground.

Seriously, the absence of every member of the State Committee creates no little surprise and comment among the resident republicans. Even Governor Robinson expressed wonderment when he heard that not one had put in an appearance. However, it is more than probable that the majority of those delegates who are ranked among the leading wire-pullers, who, in fact, lay out all the plans which the other delegates follow blindly when they get the sign, have an idea that it would be useless to wait an entire day, inasmuch as there is no prospect of any strife, and that, as things now look, all the preliminaries can be easily arranged in half that time.

It was rumored this evening that the State Committee and several of the prominent delegates from New York had, in order to escape the interruptions they would be exposed to, stopped this afternoon at Albany, where it was agreed that they were to

with a few of the delegates from the western part of the State, but this rumor turned out to be groundless, it having been given rise to doubtless by the fact that three delegates who came up from New York were known to have left the morning train at Albany. It is expected, at any rate, that by to-morrow morning, when the early Western and Eastern express trains arrive, not only all the members of the State Committee but all of the leading delegates and prominent men of the party who are officially booked at the hotels to assist, as the French say, at the political performance to be given at the Opera House on Wednesday, will be forthcoming.

An immense attendance of small fry outsiders from all parts of the State are also expected to-morrow and it is more than probable that Utica will be crowded from then until Friday as she was never crowded before. There is not a room in any of the hotels that has not been engaged beforehand for days and even weeks, and so the additional ever serviceable canvas back cot will be made to do good service in big rooms, in hallways and everywhere where cots can be placed with any degree of safety to the particular gentlemen, who will doubtless be only too glad to secure exclusive possession of them for a night or two. Thus it can be taken for granted that the observer to-day of almost everybody of note or half note, is after all no proof that the Convention will not be an enthusiastic one.

THE ARRIVAL OF LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR ROBINSON

creates some strange talk, and there are those who believe that the General is still rather doubtful about a renomination. There is nothing as yet on the surface that indicates—so far as I have been able to learn from republicans from several parts of the State now here—that he ought to fear for the result, especially since Mr. Ellis H. Roberts, who had been talked of for the position, has been renominated to Congress. The only man who stands in the way is General Batcheler, of Saratoga, and even he will not stand if his friends, in whose hands he placed himself to be dealt with according to their good judgment of the contingencies, decide to-morrow night that he ought not to go before the Convention as a candidate. It is said also, on the authority of a prominent republican in this city, that Governor Dix will exert his influence in favor of the General. As this nomination of Lieutenant Governor is the only one anybody anticipates a contest over it is certain now that if Robinson gets it, the entire republican ticket of 1872 will again be put in the field, for the friends of the other old nominees would consider it a slur upon them if the Governor and Lieutenant Governor should be declared entitled to a renomination and the remainder of the ticket not. If the friends of the other old nominees will not allow Robinson to be renominated unless it is agreed upon beforehand that their friends on the 1872 ticket shall be likewise honored, it is the general opinion among the republicans here that there will be some nice twisting and squirming to-morrow in the preliminary caucuses over and as to just what the Convention should say about it, if anything. It is said that the State Committee and the delegations from New York, Kings, Erie and St. Lawrence even are divided on the subject. Some of the leaders don't want the terrible thing even mentioned, while those who believe this would be bad policy, in view of the stand the democrats have taken, want it touched upon even if it has to be done in a gingerly way. The action of the Oneida Republican County Convention a few days ago has, in coming out as flatfooted as it did against the third term, it is believed, had more than anything else to do in creating this feeling of uneasiness and uncertainty among the managers, and as right after the Convention a resolution denouncing a third term followed one eulogizing Senator Conkling, it is the surmise that he inspired the declaration. But, from all reports, I believe that the delegates by to-morrow night will have harmonized their views on this as on all other questions to be dealt with, for one of the chief things to be attained in the Convention, in the opinion of the leaders, is harmony not only as to the nominations, but as to everything else which will become a part of its work. Among and others who, though not delegates, will have just as much, if not more, to do with the finishing up of things in the Convention, expected at daylight to-morrow are Tom Murphy, A. B. Cornell, Collector Arthur, J. N. Knapp, Secretary of the State Committee; General Batcheller, Canal Commissioners Stroud and Barkley, ex-Senator Baker, H. G. Eastman, Hamilton Fish, Jr.; W. L. Proctor, Mayor of Ogdensburg; George Bliss, John N. Parker, of Albany; J. W. Corning, Elmira; Richard Crowley, United States District Attorney, of Lockport; Police Commissioner Jourdan, of Brooklyn; State Prison Inspectors Kirkpatrick and Platt; John M. Francis, of Troy; Senator D. P. Wood, Senator Woodin, Charles E. Smythe, of Albany; W. A. Darling and G. Hilton Scribner.

THE QUESTION OF THE THIRD TERM,

There is not a liberal to be seen anywhere about town, and none of them are expected even to aid as lookers on.

GOVERNOR DIX AND THE CREDIT MOBILIER.

The authenticity of a letter recently published from Governor Dix, addressed to the chairman of the committee which had the subject of the Crédit Mobilier frauds under consideration, offering to testify to his knowledge on the subject if a commission would be sent to Albany for that purpose, having been disputed, the Utica Herald publishes the following letter from such chairman, which would seem to settle the question effectually:—

CONNERSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 14, 1874.

MY DEAR SIR: Your letter is at hand, inclosing a slip containing copy of a letter from Governor Dix to me as chairman, &c. The letter was received by the committee. I recollect the substance, and I presume it is accurately copied. I have now no means of fixing the date that the Governor's letter was received, other than this: Upon its receipt, it was considered by the committee that owing to the nearness of the close of the session, a sub-committee could not be sent to Albany to take the testimony; and as he had informed us that it was impossible for him to come to Washington, the effort to procure his evidence ended there.

From the editorial comments I infer that it is being charged that the Governor refused to appear before the committee. Speaking for myself, I will say that such is not my understanding. I and the committee understood that he was ready to testify.

In answer to your question whether I have any opinion in regard to Governor Dix's connection with these matters, I have to say that there was not sufficient testimony taken by the committee upon any matter which had to do with Governor Dix to warrant it in framing any opinion as to the real nature of the transactions. Very truly, &c., JEREMIAH M. WILSON.

AMUSEMENTS.

Booth's Theatre—Reappearance of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams.

After an absence of over five years from the New York stage Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams made their reappearance at Booth's Theatre last night to a crowded house, in the well known drama of "Connie Soogah, or the Jolly Pedler." The reception they met with proves not only that they have not been forgotten, but that they still hold a warm place in the hearts of the public. While Barney retains all of the old wit and humor, Mrs. Williams looks as fresh and blooming as one might expect a bouncing Irish girl to look who was "a jumpin' jewel wid a honeycomb between her chin and her nose." "The Connie Soogah" is full of fun and humor, with good dramatic situations and plenty of opportunity for the display of the peculiar talent of the artists. Nothing was left undone by the management to place the piece upon the stage in good shape, and the result was that the Irish drama was never presented in better style. Barney, of course, played Corney McGrath, and his appearance was greeted with a warm welcome, inferior only to that accorded to Mrs. Williams when she made her appearance as Nelly Nolan. The "Connie Soogah" was originally produced at Niblo's Garden, and since then it has been played with success in both England and Ireland. At the close of each act there was a recall, and Mrs. Williams received a hearty encore for her Irish jig in the third act. The piece was well cast, excellently played and mounted in a superior manner. Most of the scenes were really effective, and some of them were truly picturesque. Miss Mary Wells, Mr. Warde and Mr. LeClerc played the parts allotted to them well, and the piece passed off pleasantly, without a hitch. Mr. Williams, on being recalled before the curtain, made a neat little speech, thanking those present for the kindness which the New York public has always evinced toward him and Mrs. Williams, and expressed the hope that the feeling shown might be long continued.

The Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of Dublin, Lord and Lady Massercene, Major Leech, the rifle team and all the ladies and gentlemen of the party of distinguished Irish visitors, have accepted an invitation to see Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams in the "Connie Soogah," on Wednesday evening. Jarrett & Palmer have arranged to have the house handsomely decorated, and the orchestra will welcome the guests with appropriate music.

Olympic Theatre.

A spicy programme, replete with all the best elements of a first class variety entertainment, was given at the Olympic last evening in presence of a large and well pleased assemblage. Indeed, from the rise of the curtain to the fall thereof, the interest in the performance was well sustained, not more by the excellence of its numerous commendable features than by the promptness and rapidity with which it was carried on. Opening with a little romance entitled "Orpheus and Eurydice," there followed a series of humorous and well arranged sketches well calculated to amuse the crowded house, which was by no means stinted in its applause. Mr. Howard Paul was warmly welcomed, and gave some of his popular impersonations, accompanied by characteristic songs. As a Dutch delineator Mr. Knight was perfectly irresistible, especially in the sketch entitled "Weston, the Walkist," while in "Ten Years After; or, Keeping the Pledge" Mr. Sam Rickey and Master Barney, two exceedingly clever Irish comedians, were greeted with continuous approbation for the drollery and artistic merits which they displayed.

Altogether the entertainment was heartily appreciated, and it would seem that the establishment has entered on a career of prosperity which nothing but judicious management and a careful regard for the public taste could have brought about.

Wood's Museum—"Richelieu."

Bulwer's great play was produced at this theatre last night, with the following cast:—Richelieu, Mr. Davenport; Julie, Miss Miles; De Mauprat, Mr. Aldrich; Baradas, Mr. Leffingwell; Joseph, Mr. Martin; François, Miss Sandford; Marion Delorme, Miss Stratton. Mr. E. L. Davenport is justly considered one of the leading actors of the American stage, and it is to be regretted that his talents at present should be sacrificed on boards ordinarily devoted to Bowery plays and blonde burlesque, especially when no provision was made for the exigencies of the superior standard of drama in which this sterling artist excels. The production of a play like "Richelieu" demands something more than the accessories of "Escaped from Sing Sing" or "Romeo Jaffier Jenkins," and, although an intelligent theatre-goer would seek to encourage a higher order of taste in the smaller theatres, yet the most liberal mind calls for something approaching an appropriate setting for the dramatic jewel that glistens on the bill for the time being. The Richelieu of Mr. Davenport is full of strong, bold characteristics, that move with more electric force than the ingenious mechanism of more methodical representatives of the great Cardinal. The stereotyped points that in the clockwork school of dramatic art come in with the same unvarying accuracy as the musical phrase with the baton of the conductor find but little favor with him. The grandeur of the old soldier, priest and statesman, even under the most perilous circumstances as well as in the most trivial (still more perilous for the actor), was shown in every scene last night. The charm of Mr. Davenport's acting lies in its utter naturalness. A feeling akin to disappointment at first possesses the mind when one finds that the well beaten highway of the Richelieus is forsaken and that the actor seeks a direct way to convey his meaning. But as the characterization progresses and the talent of the artist impresses itself more fully on the minds of the audience the old lines are forgotten and admiration becomes the predominant feeling. The great scenes of the third and fourth acts were never delivered with more signal effect than last evening. We use the word effect advisedly, as representing intellectual effort, not mere ranting. The school of Mr. Davenport appeals more to the intelligence than to the brute instinct. With him the character of Richelieu is a harmonious whole, complete in all its parts, and not a kaleidoscope of unconnected traits. The other characters call for no special mention, except—well, considering the delightful remembrance of Mr. Davenport's impersonation, we are inclined to forbear mentioning what constitutes the meaning of the word "except."

LOUISIANA

Reverdy Johnson on the Overthrow of Kellogg.

The First Great Error of the President.

FEDERAL RECOGNITION

The President Trusts Durell and Fails in a Prerogative.

"Governors" and "Lieutenant Governors" Should Resign and Favor a New Election.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 21, 1874.

JAMES GORDON BENNETT, Editor of the HERALD, New York:—

DEAR SIR—In compliance with the request contained in your note of the 19th inst., I give you the subjoined opinion "upon the Louisiana difficulty." The questions the occasion present are of importance to the whole country, as well as to Louisiana. They should therefore be treated with much deliberation and in no partisan spirit. I proceed to consider them under three heads, viz.:—

First—Was the President right, in the first instance, in recognizing Kellogg as the Governor of the State?

Second—If he was not, had the people any right to drive Kellogg from power, as they have done, by force of arms, and to take possession of the government?

Third—Has the President a right to restore Kellogg and the government of which he was the head?

FIRST.

In my opinion the President committed an error in considering Kellogg as the legitimate Governor. He seems to have acted regardless of the fact whether he had been elected by a majority of the people of the State. His opponents insisted that he had not been, and there is every reason to believe that in this they were correct. The President's course was apparently adopted by reason of a judgment, or decree, of the United States District Court of the State. The President considered himself bound by that decree, and, as it assumed the election of Kellogg, he thought he was to take that election as conclusively established. In this, I think, the President was clearly wrong. The question whether a State government has been legitimately established is not a judicial one. The courts of the United States are not vested with any authority to consider it. This, in the nature of things, must be so. How is such a fact, when disputed, to be ascertained when the ground of the dispute is that the party claiming to have been elected did not receive a majority of the legal votes? Are the witnesses to be examined by the courts? Are the ballots which have been cast to be produced? Is the competency of each voter to be passed upon? It must be obvious that over such inquiries no court of the United States has jurisdiction. The question is a political one, and is to be adjudged by the political department of the government. This was clearly ruled by the Supreme Court in the case of Luther vs. Borden (7th Howard). In that case the facts were these:—

RHODE ISLAND, AFTER THE REVOLUTION,

had no other constitution until 1843 than its colonial charter, granted by Charles the Second in 1663. The provisions of that charter were supposed by many, and probably by a majority of the people of the State, to be, in certain essential particulars, anti-republican. They resolved, therefore, to substitute another constitution, and for this purpose a convention was held and a new government formed, under which, at a succeeding popular election, Dorr was chosen Governor. He then attempted to get possession by force, and was successfully resisted by the charter government. The question came before the Supreme Court, in the case referred to, instituted by Luther, who was acting under the Dorr constitution, to recover damages for a trespass alleged to have been committed by Borden, who had proceeded under the authority of the charter government. The opinion of the Court was given by Chief Justice Taney, and there was no dissent upon the point adverted to. It was expressly held that the inquiry whether a government exists in any State is a political and not a judicial one. The language of the Court is, "that the inquiry belonged to the political power and not to the judicial," and "that it rested with the political power to decide whether the charter government had been displaced or not." In the same case it was decided that when the President is called upon to protect a State against domestic violence, in the manner provided for by the fourth section of the fourth article of the constitution, he is compelled to determine whether the Governor or the Legislature of the State making the call is or is not legitimate, and his determination is conclusive. The result of these several rulings seem obvious. Judge Durell had no authority whatever to pass upon the question whether Kellogg had been duly elected Governor. That was a question which, when properly brought before the President, he was to determine for himself. The action of the Judge possessed for him, nor for anybody else, no authority whatever. Consequently the President, when he recognized Kellogg, as he is understood to have done, exclusively upon the ground of that action, fell into an error. He abandoned—undesignedly, no doubt—the duty which the constitution devolved upon him, and sought authority for what he did under a judgment of a United States Judge, which, as to him, was entirely void.

SECOND.

But the President having recognized Kellogg, whether upon sufficient evidence or not, that recognition was at once absolute and final. The people of the State consequently, however unjust and injurious to them may have been the decision, possessed no right to subvert the government so recognized by force of arms, except as such right was a revolutionary one. A right of revolution can never be supposed to exist under an established government. Such a right, indeed, supposes no existing legal authority, but asserts itself upon natural and elementary principles, such as are stated in our Declaration of Independence. But the States of this Union, however sovereign they are in many respects, are not wholly so. Each State is bound to the other States and to the United States, and the obligation is such that a right by force to change her form of government is not possessed by her, as its exercise might interfere with the relation that she bears to her sister States and to the paramount authority of the United States. The government of Kellogg may have been grievous in the extreme to the people of Louisiana, and, no doubt, it was so. Its corruption and abuse of power threatened the State with bankruptcy, and were destructive of all individual enterprise and happiness. Kellogg's election is said to have been accomplished by means of gross frauds upon the franchise, and this is reported by a committee vested with the power to make the inquiry by the Senate of the United States. That report, and the speech of the Hon. Mr. Carpenter in support of it, it is thought, make good the allegations of fraud to all who are not blinded by partisan prejudice. Notwithstanding all the sad consequences of the existence of the Kellogg government the sufferers cannot legally find redress in violence. They must await the deliberation of Congress and the President, and must hope (I trust not in vain) that they will, at an early day, give them relief. That the President can have no wish, himself, to tyrannize, or to permit others to tyrannize, over any State in the Union, is a proposition upon which, I apprehend, a majority of the people of the country will entertain no doubt. His past renown would be as nothing to him if he permitted himself to be governed by any such motives. He has, I doubt not, in his action in originally recognizing Kellogg, either deceived himself or been deceived by others, but the error, as I think it was, must have been one of judgment, and not of design.

THIRD.

The President having recognized Kellogg, and that recognition never having been reversed by Congress, what is his duty in the existing emergency? That he cannot permit a State government to be subverted by domestic violence without palpable dereliction of duty is clear. When called upon in proper form to put it down the constitution gives him no option in the matter. He is bound by its very words to bring it to a termination, and to restore the government attempted to be overthrown. Kellogg's government, from the time it was recognized by the President to the occurrence of the late violence, was the only government known to the State. Every department—legislative, executive and judicial—existed under its authority. The President therefore is imperatively called upon to protect it and to reinstate it as it was before the violence took place if he can. His recognition of it having been acted upon as conclusive of its legitimate existence, he has now no right to withdraw it. His decision is as binding upon him as it was upon the State. His jurisdiction over the subject was exhausted by its first exercise, and his subsequent conduct is to be governed by the same considerations which would control it if the legality of that government had never been called into doubt. What he is doing now, in my opinion, is what he is bound to do. An admission of a right to resort to violence to put down an existing government might, by its example, often lead to anarchy in every State—a condition of things more fatal to a people than any abuse of the elective franchise or governmental power.

I have said that the President is bound to restore the Kellogg government—if he can. But the government is not constituted of Kellogg alone. It is made up also of the Legislature, the judiciary and of subordinate officers, appointed or elected. The most of these are reported either to have resigned or abdicated. If they refuse to return to their offices has the President any power to force them to do so? If he has not, has he power to compel the election or appointment of others? I think it clear that he has neither, and the effect of his doing what he can for the restoration of Kellogg as Governor may leave the State without any other officer than a Governor, or with a Governor without a government. The difficulty, therefore, of the present situation in Louisiana may not be obviated by the course he is pursuing or by any which he can constitutionally adopt. How it might certainly be met without further excitement or trouble is a question which would seem to me capable of a ready solution, and that is the one suggested in your note—the resignation of Kellogg and McEnery. But to make this effective each of the Lieutenant Governors should also resign. If they are governed by patriotic motives, and desire to restore tranquillity to their State, they will not hesitate to take such a step. That Kellogg can desire to retain a position which is so adverse to the feeling of the State, and which it is obvious he would not be able to hold a day without the aid of federal troops, seems to me to be equally unpatriotic and dishonorable. But, upon such a question, the man—Kellogg—is the judge, and, as he may judge it, will he meet with the applause or condemnation of the country.

I remain, with great regard, your obedient servant, REVERDY JOHNSON.

The Danger of Having the Chief Commercial City the Capital Also.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

In connection with the wretched Louisiana business the time would seem appropriate to call the attention of the people to the great mistake (often made) of locating the political capital at the commercial capital of a State or country. Who supposes for a moment that if the capital of Louisiana had been at almost any other place in the State than New Orleans the late disgraceful overturning of the government could have occurred? It would have been impossible to have collected and transported to the scene of action the necessary number of malcontents with supplies and accoutrements in a sufficiently brief time to surprise the authorities and capture the records and public buildings. And who doubts but that if the capital of the State of New York was located in the city of New York the government of this State would have been overthrown on more than one occasion, and especially immediately prior to the commencement of the war, or at the time of the riots, or at least its overthrow attempted? Even now the loyal clans which ambitious chiefs can marshal in this great commercial centre pursue like hungry hyenas the spoils of but a single city of a great State. What might not, then, bad men, under bad leaders, do if able to compass at a single grasp the spoils of pelf, power and patronage of the whole State added to that of a single city? Who supposes that the government of France would have been overturned so often, and so easily as it has been, if the political capital had been located in one of the smaller towns, away from the great city, instead of in the midst of Paris, where men and supplies can be had for almost any enterprise, however desperate, at, as it were, the tap of the drum? In this matter we see again the wisdom of our forefathers, who, instead of locating the capital of the country at New York, or Philadelphia, or Boston, great commercial centres, located it where there was little prospect there could ever be a great city and where there was then barely more than a settlement. NEW ORLEANS.

Arrival of a Goverment Investigating Committee to Inquire Into the Recent Outbreak.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21, 1874.

B. C. Cowen, Assistant Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and Commander Rogers, of the United States Navy, a committee appointed by the government to investigate the outbreak, have just arrived and are closeted with Governor Kellogg.

General James Longstreet, Commander-in-Chief of Kellogg's army, says the State House and arsenals were surrendered for want of ammunition to defend them, and places the responsibility on Attorney General Field, who enjoined the militia appropriation of $20,000, made by the last Legislature.

Judge Dibble, in a letter to the Picayune, says he fired two shots from a window in the Custom House at those who deliberately fired at him while standing there looking on but taking no part in the fight last Monday.

The Metropolitan Police Force Reorganized in New Orleans.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21, 1874.

The following telegram has been received at the War Department from General Emory:—

HEADQUARTERS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF, NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 20, 1874.

TO THE ADJUTANT GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY, WASHINGTON:—

Yesterday the State authorities replaced the temporary police force by the regular police force of the city. It was feared that this change might cause some disturbance and troops were posted at various points in the city, but the night passed very quietly. I think this may be taken as an evidence that the surrender was complete and in good faith; for, by a peculiarity of the law of Louisiana, the police force of this city is organized under the State law and under the direct control of the Governor. W. H. EMORY, Colonel and Brevet Major General Commanding.

THE FALL RIVER CALAMITY.

The Investigation Before the Coroner's Jury—Testimony of the Superintendent and Overseers—Two More Bodies Recovered.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 21, 1874.

The Coroner's jury for the investigation of the Granite Mill disaster met at half-past two this afternoon, in the large committee room in the City Hall. Several witnesses were examined, the principal one being James E. McCreery, the Superintendent of the mills, whose testimony was substantially the same as previously reported, nothing new being elicited. At six o'clock a recess was taken until half-past seven o'clock.

At the evening session there were some dozen witnesses present. Each one was examined at length, but their testimony was in substance only a repetition of the statements already published. Samuel J. Young, the colored boy, whose duty it was to clean the mule heads, testified that he saw Dennis Leary oil the mule where the fire is reported to have originated; also saw him throw water on the fire, which he got from a sink two-thirds the way down the room from the fire.

Alfred Buckley's (second overseer of the spooling rooms) testimony was a description of what was done there after finding the exit by the stairway cut off, and added, that had any one come into the room, as the Superintendent claims to have done, they must have heard the screams of the girls, who did not cease for a moment calling his (Buckley's) name for him to save them.

Joseph Wood, second overseer of the mule room, who made his escape from the fifth story by means of the fire escape, also testified that he heard the girls in the sixth story screaming; did not hear the Superintendent or any one else call for help in the fifth story to escape, and did not see the Superintendent at all.

Mr. Shove, the treasurer of the mill, was present at both sessions of the jury, but had not been called to testify up to the hour of adjournment, ten minutes past ten P. M. The jury meet at a quarter past nine A. M. to-morrow.

Two more charred, blackened, and unrecognizable bodies were found in the lower mule room, at the north end of the mill, to-day.

THE MAINE ELECTION.

AUGUSTA, Sept. 21, 1874.

Election returns received at the Kennebec Journal office from all, except forty-four, towns in the State give Dingley 51,306 and Titcomb 40,187, making Dingley's majority 11,119. The forty-four towns yet to be heard from gave Dingley last year a majority of 433.

Wehli to Weber.

NEW YORK, May 25, 1871.

Mr. Weber—Before leaving London Madame Parepa drew my attention to your Pianos, which were unknown to me at the time. Permit me now to congratulate you upon the success of your instruments, which you kindly placed at the disposal of Miss Kellogg during her concert tour. They have been admired by the public. The press throughout the United States has unanimously pronounced them the finest Pianos in the United States. I fully endorse that opinion; as for perfect action, pure, brilliant and powerful tone and durability, they have no rival anywhere.

Believe me, yours very truly,
JAMES M. WEHLI.

THE COURTS.

NATIONAL BANKS IN COURT.

The Security Bank, of this city, on March 4, 1874, commenced an action in the State Supreme Court against the National Bank of the Commonwealth to recover $50,000, alleged to have been loaned, and also for $3,500 as a balance of account for moneys deposited with defendant. A judgment was rendered by default for the full amount. Comptroller of the Currency John J. Knox and Isaac H. Bailey, receiver of the National Bank of the Commonwealth, have filed a bill in equity in the United States Circuit Court asking to set aside the judgment and praying that the Security Bank be restrained from taking any steps toward enforcing it. Allegations appear in the bill that the action in the Supreme Court of the State was begun through George Ellis, President of the National Bank of the Commonwealth, and with intent to defraud its creditors, and that neither Knox nor Bailey had been served with the summons in the action.

A COURT INTERPRETER'S PAY.

Richard S. Rosenthal vs. The Mayor, &c.—The plaintiff is general interpreter of the Courts of Oyer and Terminer and General Sessions, and successor to the late Colonel Kazinski. The latter died while in office and contesting for his increased salary. This was given him by a resolution of the Board of Supervisors. Comptroller Green denied their power. To cut the gordian knot the Legislature passed an act legalizing the increase. The Comptroller paid the arrearages of Colonel Kazinski to his widow, but refused to honor those of the plaintiff, successor to the office, who brought suit in the Common Pleas, Special Term. The Comptroller answered that the increase related only to Kazinski, because the resolution read with his name prefixed to the title of the office. The matter was argued by A. Oakey Hall for the interpreter and Assistant Corporation Counsel Dean for the Comptroller, upon a motion by the former for judgment on a frivolous answer.

Judge Loew granted judgment, holding that neither a resolution of the Supervisors nor an act of the Legislature could inure to the benefit of an individual, but only to an officer, and that the measures in question related to the interpreter, the name merely being descriptive. This decision is particularly agreeable to the revered Mayor, who takes, as his two predecessors have taken, a county salary by virtue of a resolution simply giving it to C. Godfrey Gunther as Mayor. However, the Comptroller never raised the question of limitation against his wealthy colleague, but only against the poor interpreter.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Burglaries and Larcenies.

Before Judge Sutherland.

In this Court yesterday John Dailey was tried and convicted of grand larceny in stealing from the person of James Gilhooly, at No. 1,056 Third avenue, on the 23d of August, a gold watch, worth $40. The City Judge sent him to the State Prison for four years.

Hugh Manion, a young river thief, was tried and found guilty of stealing two coils of rope from the bark Gumuri on the 6th of August, the property of Waydell & Co. The prisoner and a confederate rowed over from Brooklyn and were in the act of taking the rope to a junk shop in New York when an officer arrested Manion. His Honor sentenced the prisoner to the State Prison for four years and six months.

John Metzer, who on the 5th of this month made a burglarious entry into the premises of Joseph F. Petitt, No. 49 avenue C, and stole solder and brass faucets worth $30, pleaded guilty to an attempt at burglary in the third degree.

Thomas B. Prentiss pleaded guilty to an attempt at grand larceny, the allegation being that on the 29th of August he stole a watch and chain worth $70 from James Bowen.

These prisoners were each sent to the State Prison for two years and six months.

FIFTY-SEVENTH STREET POLICE COURT.

A Policeman Dangerously Assaulted.

Before Judge Sherwood.

Hugh McArdle, a Jerseyman, was charged with having assaulted officer McDermott, Twenty-second precinct, in such a dangerous manner that he has been placed on the sick list. Hugh got drunk on Sunday and while in this condition entered a private house where he caused a disturbance under the mistaken notion that he was among friends. While being taken to the station house the assault was committed. He was held for trial in default of $500 bail.

Assault with a Pitcher.

James Pigeon, a machinist, residing at No. 447 West Thirty-sixth street, was arraigned for striking on the head with a pitcher Alexander Savage, proprietor of a liquor store in West Forty-third street. Pigeon drank a glass of beer, and, being unable to pay for it, Savage abused him. Pigeon then struck him with the pitcher on the head, inflicting a wound which causes him to keep his bed. Pigeon was locked up to await the result of the injury, which is not considered dangerous.

The Assault by Policeman Cromie.

The complaint of Michael Hamill, of No. 261 West Thirty-third street, against Officer Cromie, of the Mounted Squad, was taken up for examination at this Court yesterday afternoon. It will be remembered that on the afternoon of the 2d inst. the defendant, while endeavoring to arrest Hamill on Sixth avenue, near Fifty-fifth street, for intoxication, beat him in such a brutal manner as to call forth the denunciations of several respectable citizens who were eye-witnesses of the assault. Hamill was brought before Judge Smith at this Court on a charge of intoxication, which was dismissed and a complaint for assault and battery taken against the officer. Mr. Nesbitt, who appeared for Cromie, objected to the case being tried by Judge Smith, who thereupon set it down for examination before Judge Sherwood.

Seneca D. Powell, M. D., the most important witness examined, testified that he saw the complainant lying on his back in the street with the defendant standing over him and beating him brutally with his club over the head and shoulders; requested the officer to desist, but he paid no attention and continued to ply his club; the prostrate man was covered with blood, that flowed copiously from a wound on the top of his head; complainant was unconscious when witness saw the officer strike him; others had also called to the officer to desist, but he did not until another officer had come upon the scene; the complainant was very drunk; examined Hamill the day after the assault and found one of the small bones of the right arm fractured; a cut was also on the top of his head, which laid bare the bone.

Hamill was next sworn, but he knew nothing of his own knowledge of the assault.

Several other witnesses, among whom was a druggist, a grocer, &c., testified to the clubbing of Hamill, without there being any necessity for it on the part of the officer, except for the gratification of his own violent passion. The evidence for the defence was postponed.

THE POLICE.

Effort to Make the Force More Efficient and Valuable—The Men to Wear Uniforms When Off Duty.

A general order, of which the following is a copy, was issued yesterday by Superintendent Walling to the force:—

GENERAL ORDER NO. 145.
OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE,
300 MULBERRY STREET, NEW YORK, Sept. 21, 1874.

TO CAPTAINS OF PRECINCTS:—

The following rules were amended by the Board of Police, at a meeting held on the 18th inst., and are transmitted herewith to the force for their information and guidance, to wit:—

Rule 226 amended to read as follows:—

"The station houses are to be used exclusively for police business, and must not be used for any other purpose. No person shall be permitted to remain in the police station without express permission from the officer in charge, except members of the department and persons on business. The names of all persons receiving such permission shall be entered in full upon the blotter. Discussion and conversation in station houses by members of the force or others in relation to party politics are improper and will not be permitted. No person except the superior officers of the department shall be allowed to enter behind the desk."

Rule 92 was amended so as to read as follows:—

"Captains shall wear the prescribed uniform at all times, unless specially authorized to wear citizens clothes by the Board or Superintendent of Police. Sergeants, roundsmen, patrolmen and doormen shall wear the prescribed uniform unless specially authorized to wear citizens clothes by the Board or Superintendent of Police." GEORGE W. WALLING, Superintendent.

The object of the order is to increase the moral efficiency of the force, and bring up the discipline to a desired standard. President Matsell has been watching the system in operation since his return to the department, and arrived at the conclusion that many of the breaches of discipline, and much of the disregard for the rules that were constantly being brought before the attention of the Board, were owing to the circumstance that each day half the men were at liberty about the town in citizens' clothes. The greater part of this number would take advantage of this day off to enjoy themselves; and as all had not probably a forcible conviction that quiet home amusements were the most interesting, some of these men would, no doubt, often return to their duties with dispositions ill fitted to the onerous calls upon their patience and attention. If the men were compelled to retain their uniforms wherever they went it would not only check them from indulging in liberties denied policemen, but would secure to the citizens an extra force of 1,000 policemen moving about them every day. The Board has provided that on urgent occasions the Superintendent has power to permit officers going out in plain clothes, but without this permission every man in the department must in future appear in public only in his uniform.

Inspector McDermott made complaints yesterday against two sergeants, two roundsmen, a patrolman and a doorman found asleep in the Fourteenth precinct station house, when they should have been on duty. The fact that the inspector caught these men napping has caused a sensation, and all the other sergeants on night duty are doing their best to keep awake while in charge of the desk. It was proposed to the Board yesterday to supply the station houses with boxes of snuff for the use of sleepy sergeants, but it is yet doubtful whether the idea will be adopted. There are a good many sleepy sergeants and as they are seldom waked up in this manner the novelty of the effort may produce a beneficial effect. Sergeant Donagan, one of those complained of for somnolency, was a prominent candidate for Captain. His chances have, it appears, diminished. Other changes in the organization of the force are in progress through the Board and are expected to be put into operation in a few days. The detectives are to be placed on a different standing, and classed so as to work more in harmony with the requirements of the force.

Captain McCullogh, of the Twenty-ninth precinct, has for some time been desirous of leaving that locality, as the duties are heavier than his health will bear. He applied to the Board yesterday to be transferred to some other precinct, but the request was for the present denied.

THE BROOKLYN SCANDAL.

Mr. Moulton Served with the Capias in Miss Proctor's Libel Suit.

Mr. Francis D. Moulton yesterday returned home after several days' absence, during which, as he was apprised by the newspapers, an action for libel had been commenced against him by Miss Edna Dean Proctor, in the United States Court, in which the plaintiff claims damages in $100,000 on account of injurious allegations and innuendoes contained in his late statement of the Beecher-Tilton difficulty. He had also been informed that United States Marshal Harlowe held for service upon him the capias and complaint in the action. He therefore repaired to the office of that functionary to accept service of the papers and to enter in form his appearance in the action. After some conversation Marshal Harlowe and Mr. Moulton walked together to the law office of Messrs. Tracy, Catlin & Brodhead, attorneys for Miss Proctor, where it was arranged with General Tracy that Mr. Moulton is to be present to-day in court, before Judge Benedict, with counsel, to formally enter his appearance in the action according to the practice in such suits in the United States courts.

A CLEVER CAPTURE.

One of the Men Who Assaulted Officer McKenzie Taken.

John C. Mooney, of No. 107 Bleecker street, was arrested yesterday by Detective Terwiliger and Roundsman Watson, of the Eighth precinct, and locked up in the station house. He is charged with being one of the men who attacked Officer McKenzie, of the Thirty-second precinct, in July last. The officer interrupted several men in an attempt to break into a dwelling at 117th street, near Seventh avenue, and they turned upon him, attacked and beat him severely. A description of two of the parties was sent to all the precincts of police immediately after the affair occurred and yesterday Detective Terwiliger saw Mooney standing on the corner of Greene and Houston streets, and, recognizing him as one of the men, arrested him. Officer McKenzie was telegraphed for and he identified Mooney as one of the parties. He will be arraigned at Jefferson Market Police Court to-day on a charge of felonious assault.

TAMMANY'S "BIG CHIEF."

John Kelly in Town and Preparing for a "Big Scalp Dance"—What He Thinks of the Havemeyer-Waterbury Attack and What He Proposes to Do About It.

All the local politicians were on the lookout for the arrival of John Kelly in the city yesterday, although some said that he had come by an early train and was closeted with his lawyers during the entire day preparing his defence. But the truth appeared to be that he did not come until a late hour of the evening. However he was not accessible to outside parties until about eight o'clock.

Light flashed from the windows of the palatial mansion of Tammany's big chief last evening as the HERALD representative ascended the many steps which lead to the hall door. This residence is situated at the corner of Lexington avenue and Thirty-eighth street. The white shades were carefully drawn down, but the light broke through and shed enlivening rays on the broad flagging outside. The edifice is one of the elegant brown stone fronts of this vicinity.

A ring at the bell of Mr. Kelly's house brought an answer in the person of a tidily dressed girl of the true Celtic stock. The HERALD reporter asked if Mr. Kelly had yet arrived home. He was answered in the affirmative, and immediately ushered into the parlor. Here were assembled several gentlemen waiting to have a talk with the "big Injun," or to receive instructions to carry to some of the district lodges of the yet "unterrified." The sound of voices on the second floor told that others had taken time by the forelock, and had seized hold of the Wigwam Chief the very moment of his arrival. What a great thing it is to be a political chief. Everybody waits for you. The "braves" and "bucks" in the parlors sat like statues. They seemed afraid to move. The gas jets blinked with awe; the chairs, sofas, pictures—everything, seemed to partake of the greatness of the occasion. There were at least one dozen embryo statesmen in the house who waited an audience with bated breath and meditative aspect. They were a study. The air of greatness was around them, and anxious expectancy was plainly depicted in the subdued, nervous expression of their faces. Little less than a sacrilege did it appear to them that the imposing shrine they stood upon was assailed with deadly intent by the incorrigible old Knickerbocker and his attendant professional experts.

MR. KELLY INTERVIEWED.

After a few minutes' delay Mr. Kelly made his appearance, and entered into conversation with our representative.

"Mr. Kelly," said the reporter, "I wish to procure from you the principal points of your defence to the charges made against you in the letter of Mayor Havemeyer."

MR. KELLY—It is impossible just now. I have only arrived from a visit to my sister, and have not had an opportunity of consulting my counsel. I must give my whole answer in its entirety. When I consult my counsel I will be better able to say what will be my course.

REPORTER—With regard to the writer of the communication published by the Mayor, have you heard the rumor that another besides Mr. Waterbury is supposed to have written it?

MR. KELLY—I have not. I do not suppose that any one other than Waterbury wrote it. Waterbury is a man of remarkable memory, who knows very well the history of politics in this city. He, no doubt, prepared the figures. Who else is supposed to have written it?

REPORTER—Mr. John McKeon's name is suggested. Do you think he would do it?

MR. KELLY—I think that he would. As to the charges, however, (pointing to his breast and smiling), I am all right here. My conscience acquits me of all wrong, and I do not feel the least uneasiness.

Mr. Kelly absolutely refused to have anything to say relative to the matter until he should see his counsel. He professed full confidence in the effect of his statement when given to the public. The aggressiveness of his remarks to our representative when interviewed at Syracuse had, however, undergone a marked modification. It will be recollected that he there asserted he would have Waterbury and Havemeyer arrested immediately on his arrival in this city. Last night Mr. Kelly manifested no disposition to enter upon this particular course. To-day will probably develop some new and startling features.

OBITUARY.

Selah Van Duzer.

Mr. Selah Van Duzer, an old merchant of this city, died at his home in Carmel, Putnam county, yesterday, in the seventy-eighth year of his age. Mr. Van Duzer began life as a grocer in West street, but some time afterward he became a banker and broker. He was president of the New York National Exchange Bank for nearly twenty years. It was mainly through his efforts that the bank was founded in 1851, and he remained at its head till he retired from all active business pursuits in 1870. He was afflicted with dropsy for a long time before his death. His remains will be interred in Woodlawn Cemetery to-morrow.

Captain Robert Robinson.

The Troy (N. Y.) Whig of September 21 reports as follows:—"Captain Robert Robinson, of No. 53 Washington street, West Troy, died suddenly yesterday morning. The business relations of the deceased were extensive and various. He was largely interested in real estate and was engaged in the coal trade, and was also a member of the firms, of Scrafford & Co., lumber dealers, and Warford, Robinson & Co., forwarding and towing. He was a director of the Bank of West Troy, but never sought the political arena. Mr. Robinson came to West Troy thirty-five or forty years ago, and started life as a cabin boy on a boat. By integrity and industry he accumulated an estate which is estimated at $250,000."

ROW IN A NEWARK SYNAGOGUE.

A "Day of Reconciliation" Turned Into a Day of Fisticuffs.

Sunday was observed by the children of Israel in Newark as Yom Kuppur, or the Day of Atonement or Reconciliation, and at the synagogue on Washington street the services were disgracefully diversified by a performance such as is rarely seen in any sacred edifice outside of Brooklyn. It appears that a member of the synagogue, a Mr. Ables, hired a pew for himself and family. The trustees took it upon themselves to set apart for the Yom Kuppur festival certain pews for adults, and among these was Mr. Ables'. During the forenoon in walked that gentleman with his family and placed the children, as usual, in his pew. The trustees desired him to remove the children, but he refused on the very logical ground that he had paid for the use of the pew and was going to go on using it. Then the trustees waxed angry and called in Officer Hannock. Mr. Hannock undertook to put Mr. Ables out, but Mr. Ables struck out with his fist at the little officer's face. Then the row became general, and the upshot was that Mr. Ables was ejected from the temple. Yesterday Mr. Hannock made a complaint against Mr. Ables, charging him with assault and battery. He was arrested and held to bail.
